GOP Takes Up JFK's Medical Care Challenge

Republicans Ready To Fight Issue At Polls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top Republicans accepted President Kennedy's challenge Wednesday to fight the medical care issue at the polls in November and predicted they will beat him wherever he chooses to raise it.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., chairmen respectively of Senate and House GOP campaign committees, told a news conference they expected to win control of the House and pick up from one to seven seats in the Senate.

They said Tuesday's medical care vote in the Senate, and whatever efforts Kennedy may make to turn it into Democratic political capital, will further improve Republican chances.

Democrats Open Drive

Democratic leaders, meanwhile, already had taken up Kennedy's battle cry on the issue and opened their drive to avenge the administration for Tuesday's major defeat. They made this their major theme at a "school" for this year's congressional candidates.

On the GOP side, National Chairman William E. Miller, R-N.Y., accused Kennedy of a "cry baby" performance in urging voters to vindicate him. He said Republicans welcome the chance to take to the people the issue of old age health care financed by increased Social Security taxes.

Goldwater said polls coming into his office from 22 states show a majority of voters do not like the President's plan. He maintained the margin against it has been rising along with Kennedy's efforts to stir up support for it.

Medicare Not Main Issue

Although welcoming congressional election tests on medicare, Goldwater and Wilson said they did not view this as the main issue and would not ordinarily go out of their way to make it one.

With or without assistance from the medicare fight, Wilson said he expects the GOP to pick up enough House seats to win control of the next Congress. This would take at least 44.

The Democratic keynote was sounded by Speaker John W. McCormack at the session for congressional candidates. He said senators who voted against medicare "have made it a real, living, dynamic issue."

House, Senate Aid Conferees In Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) —House-Senate conferees agreed Wednesday night on a compromise $4.672 billion foreign aid authorization bill. They killed one foreign policy restriction and softened another.

The conferees knocked out a House ban on any U.S. purchases of United Nations bonds until all other member nations had paid their bills.

They also accepted a milder version of language to restrict aid to Iron Curtain countries.

The Senate had voted in a flat ban on any aid except shipments of U.S. surplus farm products. The compromise instead allows the President to continue aid when he finds it necessary for U.S. national security.

The compromise money total of $4.672 billion actually was higher than the amount voted by either House. This was because adjustments were made in individual items as the conference committee hammered out the final version.

President Kennedy originally asked for a $4,878,500,000 program. The Senate voted for $4,662,000,000, and the House upped the total to $4,668,500,000.

The conferees had little trouble working out the minor money differences.

On other key differences, the conferees:

—Knocked out a Senate restriction limiting aid to India to the amount allocated for the past fiscal year — about $727 million. The amount tentatively programmed for the coming year is classified, but is known to be higher.

—Retained the House version, with minor changes, of a crackdown on aid to countries which unfairly seize American - owned property without proper repayment.

X15 Pilots Get Collier Trophy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Wednesday awarded aviation's highest honor to four airmen who fly the X15, the nation's 4,000 mile-an-hour rocket plane.

At a White House ceremony, Kennedy presented the 51-year-old Robert J. Collier Trophy to Air Force Maj. Robert White; Joseph Walker, National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) pilot; Scott Crossfield, North American Aviation test pilot, and Navy Cmdr. Forrest Peterson.

White, who flew the X15 to an altitude record of 58.7 miles Tuesday will receive his astronaut wings from the Air Force — the first airplane pilot to wear the coveted decoration.

Under Air Force regulations for the medal, a pilot must fly a winged aircraft higher than 50 miles.

U.S. Rules Out 'Blank Check' A-Test Cutoff

No Automatic Halt Deal With Soviets, Informants Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported Wednesday to have decided against making any kind of "blank check" deal with the Soviet Union for an automatic cutoff of nuclear weapons testing next Jan. 1.

This country, qualified informants said, will continue to press for East-West agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty with a built-in system of international inspection to provide safeguards against cheating.

Rusk, Gromyko To Air Issue

The test issue is due for discussion by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko when they meet in Geneva at the end of the week to join in signing accords on the neutralization of Laos. Rusk is expected to urge the Soviet government to reconsider its opposition to international inspection on Soviet territory.

The two also will discuss the Berlin dispute, with Rusk trying to drive home the point that this country and its chief North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies have no intention whatever of withdrawing their troops from West Berlin.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev recently has intensified his efforts to pressure the United States, Britain and France to agree to substitute for their Berlin forces other troops under the United Nations flag.

Idea Suggested By Mexico

The idea of setting a cutoff date for nuclear weapons testing was informally proposed by Mexico at the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva. The suggestion was that the United States and the Soviet Union should complete their testing this year and then suspend all further experimental explosions pending intensive negotiations on a test ban treaty.

Officials said Wednesday there are two serious objections to this procedure. One is that it would constitute in effect a new, unpoliced moratorium on testing which might drag on indefinitely. Another is that it would commit the United States to a no-test policy before the nature of the next round of Soviet testing is known here.

Four U.S. Fliers Found In Jungle

SAIGON (AP)—Four U.S. airmen, missing since their transport plane crashed into a jungle mountainside Sunday, were found miraculously alive Wednesday after being almost given up for lost.

Hope had diminished that the crew of the Air Force C123 could have survived. Twenty-one planes took part in the four day hunt over territory where other planes and helicopters have been hit by ground fire of Red guerrillas.

A helicopter, unable to land at the crash site in a rugged area 150 miles northeast of Saigon, lifted two of the airmen aboard in a sling and took them to a field hospital at the coastal town of Nha Trang.

A third survivor apparently had a broken leg and could not be lifted right away. The fourth survivor stayed with him and medical corpsmen were lowered. American authorities said none of the four aboard the plane when it crashed was seriously hurt.

Saskatchewan's Striking Medics Offer Concession

SASKATOON, Sask. (UPI) — Saskatchewan's striking doctors Wednesday offered to return to work if the provincial government will call a special session of the legislature and amend the controversial medicare law to give them freedom of choice whether to practice under it.

Premier Woodrow S. Lloyd called the proposal a "major concession."

The doctors had earlier demanded that Lloyd either scuttle or suspend the compulsory medical insurance act before they returned to normal practice or began negotiations.

The settlement of the dispute was still in doubt, but observers felt Wednesday's action was the beginning of the end for the strike that for the past 18 days has left nearly one million residents of this wheat province with only "emergency" medical aid.

The development came at a convention of Lloyd's CCF-New Democratic party. Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons was permitted to speak.

"The council of the college has authorized me to put forward a new proposal which in essence involves prompt amendment of the act and the simultaneous action of the doctors in urging its members to return to work," Dalgleish said.

Lloyd did not spell out what he meant by "major concession."

However, when the doctors first called the strike, they demanded that the act be scuttled completely and the medicare issue be taken to the people in a new election.

Union Leaders To Plan Action In Rail Dispute

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charging that railroad management is trying deliberately to provoke a transportation crisis, H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said Wednesday rail union leaders will meet Friday to consider the next steps in a dispute involving thousands of railroad jobs.

Gilbert avoided mention of possible strike action when he made his statement at a press conference. He was asked what action, other than a strike call, was available to the unions now that efforts to settle the prolonged dispute are nearing the end of the line. Gilbert replied there might be efforts to get management negotiators back to the bargaining table.

The railroads have indicated they are not interested in renewing negotiations, which broke down June 22 in Chicago, and the unions are expected to issue a strike call before the railroads put into effect Aug. 16 their planned economies.

The government has one more card to play to head off temporarily any strike threat. President Kennedy can convene an emergency board to study the issues and recommend a settlement.

It was a presidential commission that recommended five months ago the work rule changes the railroads want to put into effect Aug. 16. The changes will mean elimination of 40,000 firemen's jobs, but only 13,000 jobs would be eliminated in the coming year, J. E. Wolfe, chairman of the railroad's bargaining committee, told newsmen in Chicago on Tuesday. The remaining jobs simply will not be filled when they become vacant, Wolfe said.

The unions, representing some 200,000 operating employes—engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, brakemen and switchmen—on more than 180 railroads, rejected the recommendations of the presidential commission. The unions rejected also a proposal from the National Mediation Board that the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration.

Girl Skydiver Falls 2,000 Feet, Survives

MARSTON'S MILLS, Mass. (UPI) — A 20-year-old girl skydiver, making her first jump, plunged 2,000 feet into Mystic Lake Wednesday when her parachute failed to open, but survived with apparently only minor injuries.

A man and boy fishing nearby pulled Lois Ann Frotten of Hyannis out after she tumbled end over end out of a small private plane.

Big Balloon Hoisted 922 Miles In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A shiny, 13-story-tall balloon, largest manmade object ever sent into space, soared 922 miles high Wednesday in a glittering predawn show which laid the groundwork for boosting a similar sphere into orbit as an experimental communications satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration termed the 23-minute suborbital flight a complete success and said one of the big balls will be hoisted into orbit next fall as Echo II.

No communications experiments were tried on the brief flight, which was to determine if the balloon would inflate and hold its shape.

Residents up early in the Cape Canaveral area Wednesday watched the balloon—nicknamed "Big Shot" — drifted across the dark sky as a brilliant yellow object for more than 10 minutes before it became masked by haze and clouds.

Clear skies would have permitted visibility from most of the eastern United States.

Project officials on the ground had an even better ringside seat through closed circuit television from space. A camera mounted in the head of the Thor booster rocket graphically recorded the life and death of Big Shot and relayed the television view instantly to Cape monitors.

The striking pictures, shown later to newsmen on video tape, were as clear as those beamed daily onto home screens.

The film showed the canister carrying the neatly folded bundle of plastic sheeting shoot upward from the burned out Thor. The canister split apart, releasing the bag, and gas inside it started the inflation process. With the rays of the rising sun reflecting from its aluminum coat, the paper-thin balloon first assumed a watermelon shape and within 20 seconds was a round ball 135 feet in diameter.

Moving slightly faster than the highly stabilized Thor, the sphere gradually became smaller in the picture as it zoomed to the top of its planned trajectory and then started the plunge back to earth.

The film clearly depicted a capsule containing a 16 mm movie camera dropping off the booster toward the Atlantic Ocean below. As the rocket fell back into the atmosphere, it began to break apart under growing friction and heat and pieces of it zipped across the screen.

By now the balloon was a tiny speck on the monitor. Just before the Thor and its camera disintegrated, the bright speck burst in a puff of smoke, signaling the blazing death of Big Shot, which was intended.

The flight ended 483 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

The movie film capsule parachuted safely into the sea northeast of San Salvador and was recovered by the Air Rescue Service. The film was expected to show the balloon flight even more vividly than the television strip.

British Court Rebuffs Soblen But Appeal Set

LONDON (AP)—Convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert Soblen lost a bid Wednesday to be set free in Britain but won a delay of perhaps six weeks in his fight to avoid deportation to the United States.

The 61-year-old psychiatrist, facing a life term in America, failed to convince a three-man high court that he should be freed from detention by the Home Office.

The judges, however, granted his petition for an appeal to a higher tribunal. This process may take six weeks or more. Soblen's lawyers said they would apply Thursday for an appeal hearing.

Soblen has asked the Home Office for asylum as a political refugee. A spokesman said "the home secretary will consider the application for asylum on its merits" after a final decision on the case by the courts.

Soblen flashed his first courtroom smile in two days when he learned that Britain would not immediately deport him.

The Home Office is, in effect, barred from shipping the fugitive spy—who claims that blood cancer will kill him soon anyway—on to New York to face the consequences of his crime against U.S. security.

Soblen slashed one of his wrists and plunged a knife into his abdomen July 1 while aboard an airliner carrying him back to New York from Tel Aviv, where he had fled after jumping $100,000 bail.

He told the high court he had no intention of killing himself but hoped his condition would force his removal from the airliner to British soil for hospitalization and a possible future refuge.

Nuclear Compact Bill Sent To White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed Wednesday and sent to the White House a bill giving Congress' consent to the Southern Interstate Nuclear Compact.

The compact includes Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Truce Declared In Capitol Hill Prestige Feud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate appropriations committees finally agreed Wednesday to a truce in their five-month-old jurisdictional dispute. A speedy break in the jam on vital money bills was predicted.

Not a penny has been appropriated by Congress for operation of the government since the new fiscal year started July 1.

The dispute for handling joint meetings of the appropriations committees of the two bodies was first viewed with some humor early in the year, but it became serious as the fiscal year ran out without enactment of a single appropriations measure.

While the two committees were deadlocked, the government has been operating since June 30 under a one-month stopgap resolution authorizing spending at levels for the last fiscal year.

The compromise agreement reached after negotiations between representatives of the two committees will mean, a House spokesman said, that within three weeks all major money bills will have passed the House and been sent to the Senate.

The impasse between the committees — headed by 83-year-old Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., and 84-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz. — began when the House demanded that it share with the Senate jurisdiction over conference sessions to hash out differences in money measures. The House wanted to host and preside over half of these sessions.

The Senate refused — that is, unless the House would agree to give up half of its historic right to intiate appropriations bills. This the House refused.

Under the temporary settlement reached Wednesday, it was agreed that the joint meetings would be held on neutral grounds. The question of who will preside will be decided by the ranking members of each committee.

The agreement calls for a special joint committee to study the issues in the dispute and recommend next January a permanent settlement. The temporary compromise covers only this year.

Launch Of Venus Probe Scheduled For Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla (AP) —An interplanetary spaceship named Mariner 1 is scheduled for launching Saturday on a 3½-month journey to the vicinity of the planet Venus.

If successful, the intricate spacecraft will zip within 10,000 miles of Venus in early November and sensitive instruments will probe secrets of the cloud-veiled planet.

Before Mariner 1 covers the 36 million miles to Venus, Mariner 2, scheduled for launching within six weeks, is to be following the same course through silent space.

Purpose of the double launching is to gather as much data as possible in the brief six-week period when Venus is in a favorable position. It will be another 19 months before Earth and Venus again will be in relative positions in their orbits about the sun, for another shot.

U.S. scientists anticipate Russia will launch a vehicle toward Venus in the present period.

The Russians launched the only previous Venus probe, but its radio equipment failed long before it reached the vicinity of Venus. They estimated it passed within 62,000 miles of the bright planet and went into orbit around the sun—just as Mariners 1 and 2 are expected to do.

An Atlas-Agena B rocket will start the 446-pound Mariner 1 on its space voyage. Using the same technique which enabled Ranger 4 to hit the moon earlier this year, the Agena B will settle into a so-called "parking orbit" 115 miles above Earth at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour. When the Agena B is in proper position for a Venus trajectory, its engine will accelerate to Earth escape speed of 25,700 miles an hour and kick the spacecraft free.

A complex system of Earth and sun sensors, gyroscopes and gas jets will keep Mariner on course and in the proper attitude so its instruments can radio data back to earth and its solar panels gather the sun's rays for battery power.

Junta Takes Power; Prado Under Arrest

Country Is Tense As Demonstrators Clash With Police

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A military junta arrested President Manuel Prado in a bloodless coup Wednesday and seized the government of Peru in an atmosphere charged with high tension and the threat of widespread violence.

Disorders broke out quickly and police had to use water cannon and gunfire to throw back demonstrators. Three stone-throwing students were reported wounded in a clash between a crowd of young demonstrators and police.

Tense thousands—many booing and some cheering—watched in the square before the government palace as the junta swore itself and its military cabinet into office, hours after the predawn takeover. Police manned water-cannon trucks and others moved in on the crowd to hold back the threat of violent demonstrations.

Even after the new military government left the palace in the Plaza de Armas, crowds milled about and armored cars remained there on the alert. Most of the crowd seemed angry at the events but there were some cries of "Viva, army!" on its fringes.

Students Clubbed

Police clashed sporadically with small groups of students, clubbing the demonstrators on backs and heads with rubber truncheons. Near San Marcos University, police fired tear gas bombs to break up a student crowd running down the Peruvian flag to half staff.

Threats of a strike by the Confederation of Labor, representing 75 per cent of the nation's labor force, added to the tension.

(The coup brought immediate hemisphere repercussions. The United States announced suspension of diplomatic relations with Peru and other nations followed suit. The United States halted new Alliance for Progress aid, which has been running to about $75 million annually.)

The armed forces chiefs moved suddenly at the height of a crisis touched off by the June 10 presidential elections in which the military's long-time political foe, reform-minded Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, ran first.

Election Fraud Claimed

The joint army, navy and air force junta claimed it acted because the elections had been fraudulent and denied its action was designed to keep Haya and his leftist but avowed anti-Communist American Popular Revolutionary party—APRA—out of power.

But there were unconfirmed reports immediately that Haya fled to asylum in the Venezuelen Embassy. It was a repeat performance, if he did. He was in asylum in the Colombian Embassy for five years after Gen. Manuel Odria seized power in a coup in 1948.

The military junta ordered Jose Enrique Bustamente Corzo, president of the election board which certified the ballotting, to surrender himself. He has been reported near nervous collapse at his Lima home, after resisting army demands to recommend nullification of the elections.

The drama began at about 3:15

U.S. Suspends Peru Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States suspended diplomatic relations with Peru on Wednesday in a swift reaction to the bloodless military coup in Lima.

The Washington action included a halt in new Alliance for Progress aid, pouring into Peru at a $75-million yearly rate. But it did not cut off U.S. assistance already sent there.

A major aim of the U.S. Latin America policy is promotion of democracy and social progress and opposition to dictatorship.

Thus news of plans by the Peruvian military to take over the government had barely reached Washington when State Department press officer Lincoln White announced the severe U.S. disapproval.

What further might be done remained undecided while U.S. diplomats assessed developments and conferred with Latin-American colleagues.

One Washington hope, not borne out so far, was that the reins of government in Peru would somehow wind up in civilian hands as they did during Argentina's crisis earlier this year.

Gilbert replied there might be efforts to get management negotiators back to the bargaining table.

The railroads have indicated they are not interested in renewing negotiations, which broke down June 22 in Chicago, and the unions are expected to issue a strike call before the railroads put into effect Aug. 16 their planned economies.

The government has one more card to play to head off temporarily any strike threat. President Kennedy can convene an emergency board to study the issues and recommend a settlement.

It was a presidential commission that recommended five months ago the work rule changes the railroads want to put into effect Aug. 16. The changes will mean elimination of 40,000 firemen's jobs, but only 13,000 jobs would be eliminated in the coming year, J. E. Wolfe, chairman of the railroad's bargaining committee, told newsmen in Chicago on Tuesday. The remaining jobs simply will not be filled when they become vacant, Wolfe said.

The unions, representing some 200,000 operating employes—engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, brakemen and switchmen—on more than 180 railroads, rejected the recommendations of the presidential commission. The unions rejected also a proposal from the National Mediation Board that the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration.

Girl Skydiver Falls 2,000 Feet, Survives

MARSTON'S MILLS, Mass. (UPI) — A 20-year-old girl skydiver, making her first jump, plunged 2,000 feet into Mystic Lake Wednesday when her parachute failed to open, but survived with apparently only minor injuries.

A man and boy fishing nearby pulled Lois Ann Frotten of Hyannis out after she tumbled end over end out of a small private plane.

Big Balloon Hoisted 922 Miles In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A shiny, 13-story-tall balloon, largest manmade object ever sent into space, soared 922 miles high Wednesday in a glittering predawn show which laid the groundwork for boosting a similar sphere into orbit as an experimental communications satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration termed the 23-minute suborbital flight a complete success and said one of the big balls will be hoisted into orbit next fall as Echo II.

No communications experiments were tried on the brief flight, which was to determine if the balloon would inflate and hold its shape.

Residents up early in the Cape Canaveral area Wednesday watched the balloon—nicknamed "Big Shot" — drifted across the dark sky as a brilliant yellow object for more than 10 minutes before it became masked by haze and clouds.

Clear skies would have permitted visibility from most of the eastern United States.

Project officials on the ground had an even better ringside seat through closed circuit television from space. A camera mounted in the head of the Thor booster rocket graphically recorded the life and death of Big Shot and relayed the television view instantly to Cape monitors.

The striking pictures, shown later to newsmen on video tape, were as clear as those beamed daily onto home screens.

The film showed the canister carrying the neatly folded bundle of plastic sheeting shoot upward from the burned out Thor. The canister split apart, releasing the bag, and gas inside it started the inflation process. With the rays of the rising sun reflecting from its aluminum coat, the paper-thin balloon first assumed a watermelon shape and within 20 seconds was a round ball 135 feet in diameter.

Moving slightly faster than the highly stabilized Thor, the sphere gradually became smaller in the picture as it zoomed to the top of its planned trajectory and then started the plunge back to earth.

The film clearly depicted a capsule containing a 16 mm movie camera dropping off the booster toward the Atlantic Ocean below. As the rocket fell back into the atmosphere, it began to break apart under growing friction and heat and pieces of it zipped across the screen.

By now the balloon was a tiny speck on the monitor. Just before the Thor and its camera disintegrated, the bright speck burst in a puff of smoke, signaling the blazing death of Big Shot, which was intended.

The flight ended 483 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

The movie film capsule parachuted safely into the sea northeast of San Salvador and was recovered by the Air Rescue Service. The film was expected to show the balloon flight even more vividly than the television strip.

British Court Rebuffs Soblen But Appeal Set

LONDON (AP)—Convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert Soblen lost a bid Wednesday to be set free in Britain but won a delay of perhaps six weeks in his fight to avoid deportation to the United States.

The 61-year-old psychiatrist, facing a life term in America, failed to convince a three-man high court that he should be freed from detention by the Home Office.

The judges, however, granted his petition for an appeal to a higher tribunal. This process may take six weeks or more. Soblen's lawyers said they would apply Thursday for an appeal hearing.

Soblen has asked the Home Office for asylum as a political refugee. A spokesman said "the home secretary will consider the application for asylum on its merits" after a final decision on the case by the courts.

Soblen flashed his first courtroom smile in two days when he learned that Britain would not immediately deport him.

The Home Office is, in effect, barred from shipping the fugitive spy—who claims that blood cancer will kill him soon anyway—on to New York to face the consequences of his crime against U.S. security.

Soblen slashed one of his wrists and plunged a knife into his abdomen July 1 while aboard an airliner carrying him back to New York from Tel Aviv, where he had fled after jumping $100,000 bail.

He told the high court he had no intention of killing himself but hoped his condition would force his removal from the airliner to British soil for hospitalization and a possible future refuge.

Nuclear Compact Bill Sent To White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed Wednesday and sent to the White House a bill giving Congress' consent to the Southern Interstate Nuclear Compact.

The compact includes Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Truce Declared In Capitol Hill Prestige Feud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate appropriations committees finally agreed Wednesday to a truce in their five-month-old jurisdictional dispute. A speedy break in the jam on vital money bills was predicted.

Not a penny has been appropriated by Congress for operation of the government since the new fiscal year started July 1.

The dispute for handling joint meetings of the appropriations committees of the two bodies was first viewed with some humor early in the year, but it became serious as the fiscal year ran out without enactment of a single appropriations measure.

While the two committees were deadlocked, the government has been operating since June 30 under a one-month stopgap resolution authorizing spending at levels for the last fiscal year.

The compromise agreement reached after negotiations between representatives of the two committees will mean, a House spokesman said, that within three weeks all major money bills will have passed the House and been sent to the Senate.

The impasse between the committees — headed by 83-year-old Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., and 84-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz. — began when the House demanded that it share with the Senate jurisdiction over conference sessions to hash out differences in money measures. The House wanted to host and preside over half of these sessions.

The Senate refused — that is, unless the House would agree to give up half of its historic right to intiate appropriations bills. This the House refused.

Under the temporary settlement reached Wednesday, it was agreed that the joint meetings would be held on neutral grounds. The question of who will preside will be decided by the ranking members of each committee.

The agreement calls for a special joint committee to study the issues in the dispute and recommend next January a permanent settlement. The temporary compromise covers only this year.

Launch Of Venus Probe Scheduled For Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla (AP) —An interplanetary spaceship named Mariner 1 is scheduled for launching Saturday on a 3½-month journey to the vicinity of the planet Venus.

If successful, the intricate spacecraft will zip within 10,000 miles of Venus in early November and sensitive instruments will probe secrets of the cloud-veiled planet.

Before Mariner 1 covers the 36 million miles to Venus, Mariner 2, scheduled for launching within six weeks, is to be following the same course through silent space.

Purpose of the double launching is to gather as much data as possible in the brief six-week period when Venus is in a favorable position. It will be another 19 months before Earth and Venus again will be in relative positions in their orbits about the sun, for another shot.

U.S. scientists anticipate Russia will launch a vehicle toward Venus in the present period.

The Russians launched the only previous Venus probe, but its radio equipment failed long before it reached the vicinity of Venus. They estimated it passed within 62,000 miles of the bright planet and went into orbit around the sun—just as Mariners 1 and 2 are expected to do.

An Atlas-Agena B rocket will start the 446-pound Mariner 1 on its space voyage. Using the same technique which enabled Ranger 4 to hit the moon earlier this year, the Agena B will settle into a so-called "parking orbit" 115 miles above Earth at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour. When the Agena B is in proper position for a Venus trajectory, its engine will accelerate to Earth escape speed of 25,700 miles an hour and kick the spacecraft free.

A complex system of Earth and sun sensors, gyroscopes and gas jets will keep Mariner on course and in the proper attitude so its instruments can radio data back to earth and its solar panels gather the sun's rays for battery power.

Junta Takes Power; Prado Under Arrest

Country Is Tense As Demonstrators Clash With Police

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A military junta arrested President Manuel Prado in a bloodless coup Wednesday and seized the government of Peru in an atmosphere charged with high tension and the threat of widespread violence.

Disorders broke out quickly and police had to use water cannon and gunfire to throw back demonstrators. Three stone-throwing students were reported wounded in a clash between a crowd of young demonstrators and police.

Tense thousands—many booing and some cheering—watched in the square before the government palace as the junta swore itself and its military cabinet into office, hours after the predawn takeover. Police manned water-cannon trucks and others moved in on the crowd to hold back the threat of violent demonstrations.

Even after the new military government left the palace in the Plaza de Armas, crowds milled about and armored cars remained there on the alert. Most of the crowd seemed angry at the events but there were some cries of "Viva, army!" on its fringes.

Students Clubbed

Police clashed sporadically with small groups of students, clubbing the demonstrators on backs and heads with rubber truncheons. Near San Marcos University, police fired tear gas bombs to break up a student crowd running down the Peruvian flag to half staff.

Threats of a strike by the Confederation of Labor, representing 75 per cent of the nation's labor force, added to the tension.

(The coup brought immediate hemisphere repercussions. The United States announced suspension of diplomatic relations with Peru and other nations followed suit. The United States halted new Alliance for Progress aid, which has been running to about $75 million annually.)

The armed forces chiefs moved suddenly at the height of a crisis touched off by the June 10 presidential elections in which the military's long-time political foe, reform-minded Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, ran first.

Election Fraud Claimed

The joint army, navy and air force junta claimed it acted because the elections had been fraudulent and denied its action was designed to keep Haya and his leftist but avowed anti-Communist American Popular Revolutionary party—APRA—out of power.

But there were unconfirmed reports immediately that Haya fled to asylum in the Venezuelen Embassy. It was a repeat performance, if he did. He was in asylum in the Colombian Embassy for five years after Gen. Manuel Odria seized power in a coup in 1948.

The military junta ordered Jose Enrique Bustamente Corzo, president of the election board which certified the ballotting, to surrender himself. He has been reported near nervous collapse at his Lima home, after resisting army demands to recommend nullification of the elections.

The drama began at about 3:15

U.S. Suspends Peru Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States suspended diplomatic relations with Peru on Wednesday in a swift reaction to the bloodless military coup in Lima.

The Washington action included a halt in new Alliance for Progress aid, pouring into Peru at a $75-million yearly rate. But it did not cut off U.S. assistance already sent there.

A major aim of the U.S. Latin America policy is promotion of democracy and social progress and opposition to dictatorship.

Thus news of plans by the Peruvian military to take over the government had barely reached Washington when State Department press officer Lincoln White announced the severe U.S. disapproval.

What further might be done remained undecided while U.S. diplomats assessed developments and conferred with Latin-American colleagues.

One Washington hope, not borne out so far, was that the reins of government in Peru would somehow wind up in civilian hands as they did during Argentina's crisis earlier this year.

EAL, Engineers Near Accord In Some Areas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eastern Air Lines President Malcolm A. MacIntyre said Wednesday night the ompany was "near agreement in some areas" with the flight engineers union on a new contract that would end a 26-day-old strike.

MacIntyre told newsmen after his first appearance in government-aided negotiations that there was no agreement yet, however.

He said Wednesday's 6 p.m. EDT deadline set by the airline for acceptance of its offer till stood. He indicated that since this deadline had expired, Eastern would start making its offer to individual flight engineers so it could resume operations.

EAL planes have been grounded by the walkout of the Flight Engineers International Association (AFL-CIO) for nearly four weeks over a jet crew dispute.

MacIntyre said the company and union spokesmen were "pretty close" on this issue.

Eastern had said it would begin training pilots to take over engineer's jobs on jets if the engineers did not accept its offer either through their union or as individuals by next Tuesday.

ICC Is Urged To Okay N&W Bid For AC&Y

WASHINGTON (AP)—A string of witnesses from three railroads and six manufacturing firms urged an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner Wednesday to recommend approval of the Norfolk & Western Railway's bid for control of the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad.

There was little cross-examination of the witnesses by representatives of the Railway Labor Executives' Association as the hearing on the proposal opened before Examiner Lester R. Conley.

The RLEA has raised the only formal opposition to the proposal, which provides for N&W acquisition of all outstanding AC&Y stock for $6.5 million.

Stuart T. Saunders, N&W president and the lead-off witness, urged that the ICC act on the current case about the same time it decides a proposal for consolidation of the N&W, the Nickel Plate and Wabash railroads.

The three-way consolidation plan is one of three major eastern merger proposals pending before the ICC. The others would unite the Pennsylvania with the New York Central and the Chesapeake & Ohio with the Baltimore & Ohio.

Also testifying in support of the proposal were officials of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., B. F. Goodrich Co., Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., General Tire and Rubber Co., Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and National Lime & Stone Co.

a.m., and the coup was accomplished in less than an hour after the military sent troops to surround the presidential palce.

Shortly afterward, tanks rumbled into position. An army colonel stood before a loudspeaker on one of the tanks. He ordered President Prado "in the name of patriotism" and for the sake of avoiding bloodshed to surrender peacefully.

Minutes ticked by. Tank commanders started their motors again. One tank butted into the big iron gates leading to the grounds around the marble palace. Other tanks followed. Soldiers in combat fatigues moved inside and set up flares that lit up the predawn sky.

Detachments entered the palace and seized several APRA party members, an eyewitness reported. Other troops cordoned off the streets near APRA headquarters and occupied the building. Soldiers shouted at the people to remain indoors and stay away from their windows.

Suddenly, Prado emerged from the palace. He was ushered swiftly into a military car which sped away. One report said he was taken to San Lorenzo Island off Callao, Lima's seaport. Another said he was held in the naval armory in Callao itself.

Food Congress Exhibit Planned

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Maryland's exhibit in the 5th International Food Congress will feature the state's total pattern of industry and not single products, a governor's advisory committee decided Wednesday.

The central theme that Maryland is the focal point for manufacturing and shipping of food was agreed upon after a 2½-hour meeting of the committee.

The Food Congress will be held in New York Sept. 8-16. Congress officials estimate that from 35,000 to 40,00 executives and 300,000 general visitors will be on hand during the nine days.

Gilbert Crandall, head of the tourism division in the State Department of Economic Development, was named to work out the details of he display ith the Ivel Corp., an exhibit builder.

Marine Fatally Shot By Sentry

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Camp Lejeune authorities continued an investigation Wednesday into the death of a Marine who was shot by a sentry. Officers said the Marine was driving a stolen auto after the critical stabbing of another Marine.

The Camp Lejeune public information office said that Pvt. Michael Druck, 19, of (57 east 8th Ave.) North York, Pa., was shot Monday night when he failed to heed the challenge of a sentry.

Marine officials quoted the sentry, Pvt. Bob J. Schellinger, 19, of East Putnam, Windham, Conn., as saying he gave two vocal challenges, then fired one warning shot before Druck was shot.

Druck drove the car about a half-mile before it crashed into a ditch. Druck was found dead in the car.

Woman Arrested In Tavern Holdup

BALTIMORE (AP) — Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested Wednesday Mrs. Karol Richards, charged in a warrant with the armed holdup of an Evansville, Ind., tavern last June 6.

Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the FBI's office here, said agents arrested Mrs. Richards in a downtown bar.

Powers said the women's husband, Donald, was arrested in Baltimore Tuesday. The agent said both Mr. and Mrs. Richards were charged in the armed robbery.

Mrs. Richards, 24, appeared before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart pending the arrival of the warrant from Indiana.

Reapportion Forces Hail Mich. Ruling

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A group seeking reapportionment of the Maryland Senate drew encouragement Wednesday from a Michigan Supreme Court decision ordering more voting power for metropolitan areas in the Senate of that state.

A similar case on the makeup of the Maryland Senate comes up for argument Monday in the state Court of Appeals here.

"Naturally, I'm encouraged even though it is by a court of a sister state rather than by our own Court of Appeals or our federal court," Alfred L. Scanlan, who will argue the case for Maryland reapportionment forces, said of the Michigan ruling.

"The result reached in Michigan is most relevant to our case. If the Michigan Senate is unconstitutionally malapportioned, as apparently has been decided by the Michigan Supreme Court, the Maryland Senate is even more so.

"In Michigan the worst discrepancy (against a metropolitan district) is a 15 to 1 dilution of voting rights. In Maryland, the maximum dilution is 33 to 1 when you compare Baltimore County (the state's largest) with Kent County (the state's smallest in population)."

Sen. Randolph Blamed For Medicare's Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to President Kennedy put the blame Wednesday on one senator for defeat of the administration's plan for health care of the aged through Social Security.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, legislative assistant, didn't name the senator. But it was assumed generally to be Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-WVa.

Randolph is an old time New Dealer upon whom the administration had been counting to support medicare.

But Randolph voted to table the President's bill. He expressed fear it would imperil a public welfare bill to which medicare had been proposed as an amendment.

Randolph described the welfare bill as vital to West Virginia.

The first roll call showed that medicare was beaten by only one vote. Two of the opposition votes were cast by Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., and Randolph. Supporters believed Hayden would have switched if Randolphh did.

If both had voted against tabling medicare, it would have been a tie and medicare would have remained alive. On a final tie vote, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson could have voted to break it and passed the bill.

As it was, the vote to kill the bill was 52-48.

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Maryland's exhibit in the 5th International Food Congress will feature the state's total pattern of industry and not single products, a governor's advisory committee decided Wednesday.

The central theme that Maryland is the focal point for manufacturing and shipping of food was agreed upon after a 2½-hour meeting of the committee.

The Food Congress will be held in New York Sept. 8-16. Congress officials estimate that from 35,000 to 40,00 executives and 300,000 general visitors will be on hand during the nine days.

Gilbert Crandall, head of the tourism division in the State Department of Economic Development, was named to work out the details of he display ith the Ivel Corp., an exhibit builder.

Marine Fatally Shot By Sentry

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Camp Lejeune authorities continued an investigation Wednesday into the death of a Marine who was shot by a sentry. Officers said the Marine was driving a stolen auto after the critical stabbing of another Marine.

The Camp Lejeune public information office said that Pvt. Michael Druck, 19, of (57 east 8th Ave.) North York, Pa., was shot Monday night when he failed to heed the challenge of a sentry.

Marine officials quoted the sentry, Pvt. Bob J. Schellinger, 19, of East Putnam, Windham, Conn., as saying he gave two vocal challenges, then fired one warning shot before Druck was shot.

Druck drove the car about a half-mile before it crashed into a ditch. Druck was found dead in the car.

Woman Arrested In Tavern Holdup

BALTIMORE (AP) — Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested Wednesday Mrs. Karol Richards, charged in a warrant with the armed holdup of an Evansville, Ind., tavern last June 6.

Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the FBI's office here, said agents arrested Mrs. Richards in a downtown bar.

Powers said the women's husband, Donald, was arrested in Baltimore Tuesday. The agent said both Mr. and Mrs. Richards were charged in the armed robbery.

Mrs. Richards, 24, appeared before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart pending the arrival of the warrant from Indiana.

30 Die In Food Riots

HONG KONG (AP) — Newspaper reports Wednesday claimed more than 30 persons, including two Communist armed guards, were killed Saturday in Red China's Kwangtung Province as hundreds of hungry people stormed and looted a government granary.

Reapportion Forces Hail Mich. Ruling

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A group seeking reapportionment of the Maryland Senate drew encouragement Wednesday from a Michigan Supreme Court decision ordering more voting power for metropolitan areas in the Senate of that state.

A similar case on the makeup of the Maryland Senate comes up for argument Monday in the state Court of Appeals here.

"Naturally, I'm encouraged even though it is by a court of a sister state rather than by our own Court of Appeals or our federal court," Alfred L. Scanlan, who will argue the case for Maryland reapportionment forces, said of the Michigan ruling.

"The result reached in Michigan is most relevant to our case. If the Michigan Senate is unconstitutionally malapportioned, as apparently has been decided by the Michigan Supreme Court, the Maryland Senate is even more so.

"In Michigan the worst discrepancy (against a metropolitan district) is a 15 to 1 dilution of voting rights. In Maryland, the maximum dilution is 33 to 1 when you compare Baltimore County (the state's largest) with Kent County (the state's smallest in population)."

Sen. Randolph Blamed For Medicare's Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to President Kennedy put the blame Wednesday on one senator for defeat of the administration's plan for health care of the aged through Social Security.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, legislative assistant, didn't name the senator. But it was assumed generally to be Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-WVa.

Randolph is an old time New Dealer upon whom the administration had been counting to support medicare.

But Randolph voted to table the President's bill. He expressed fear it would imperil a public welfare bill to which medicare had been proposed as an amendment.

Randolph described the welfare bill as vital to West Virginia.

The first roll call showed that medicare was beaten by only one vote. Two of the opposition votes were cast by Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., and Randolph. Supporters believed Hayden would have switched if Randolphh did.

If both had voted against tabling medicare, it would have been a tie and medicare would have remained alive. On a final tie vote, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson could have voted to break it and passed the bill.

As it was, the vote to kill the bill was 52-48.

McGovern Resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's food-for-peace administrator, George McGovern, resigned Wednesday to open his campaign for U.S. senator from South Dakota.

Iran Premier Resigns

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Iranian strongman Premier Ali Amini resigned Wednesday with a blast at the United States. He said "incredible" U.S. slowness in sending aid to Iran was a key reason for his government's fall.

NEW YORK (AP)—The initial effect of the margin cut on the stock market was light and brief. But Wall Street is hopeful that the longer term impact will be more favorable.

After the market closed July 9, the Federal Reserve Board reduced the margin requirement from 70 per cent to 50 per cent. This meant that an investor would have to pay 50 cents cash down for each $1 worth of stocks he bought instead of the 70 cents required since July 28, 1960.

The action was intended to help the economy by making it easier to buy stocks. Some brokers and investors thought it came too late —at a time when the market was making some recovery from a seven-month decline. Others felt it was timely.

Previously margin cuts usually stimulated a moderate rally for a short time. With a subsequent decline being followed by a substantial advance.

So far the market seems to be following the pattern. On the day the cut was ordered, the Dow Jones industrial average closed at 580.82. A week later it showed an advance to 588.10, a gain of 1.25 per cent.

In each case when margins were cut in the past a decline of 4½ per cent to 12 per cent followed in three to 26 weeks. The loss was regained in eight to 13 weeks.

"The first impact is over and it looks like the market will perform according to precedent," commented Martin Gilbert, analyst for the brokerage firm, Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. "If the reduction was going to do us a lot of good we would have a lot more trading volume. But I think it was a very favorable move."

The advance after the Federal Reserve order was heaviest July 10, continued for the next two days and then a decline set in.

Lester Wyetzner of Bache & Co. said the expected stimulation by the margin cut was short-lived because of the "extreme amount of buying power that had been used up in the previous two weeks of advance."

He described the general market situation as still "touch and go."

Arthur W. Taylor To Be 1957 Reunion Speaker

The program for the fifth reunion of Allegany High School class of 1957 was outlined at a committee meeting held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Marianne Hoelzer, Greene Street.

The reunion will be in the form of a dinner and dance August 11 at the Ali Ghan Country Club. Cocktails will be at 6, dinner at 7, followed by an informal program and dancing at 9.

Mr. Taylor is retired after having taught mathematics at Allegany High School, after serving as principal at Beall High School. He wrote a book, called "Unto One of the Least" and one of his quotes, "Knowledge be left Where None Was Before" is being used in the reunion program.

Categories for awarding prizes will be selected at the final committee meeting, which will be held July 31 at the home of Miss MacDonald, 723 Gephart Drive at 8 p. m.

Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, teacher at Allegany, is serving as reunion advisor. Any class member not contacted is asked to make reservations with Mrs. Martha Miller Strickland, 112 North Allegany Street. B&O Picnic To Be Sat.

The annual outing and picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans and the Ladies Auxiliary will be held Saturday at Minke's Cottage Inn.

It will be in the form of a family basket picnic, and will be an all-day affair, beginning at approximately 10 a.m. The program includes games for all ages and prizes will be awarded to the children.

Mrs. Charles Hardy, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, and George Loar, president of the Veterans Club, are co-chairmen of arrangements.

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias and peonies, require more water to keep them fresh than smaller flowers. Submerging the entire arrangement, flowers and all, in water for a few minutes each day helps to prolong beauty of the flowers. Do not submerge such flowers as iris, delphiniums, and orchids, for they waterspot, the Society of American Florists says.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING—Mr. and Mrs. John Marlock were honor guests of their daughters, Mrs. Cecil E. Robinette, Lovettsville, Va., and her sister, Mrs. Samuel Y. Attends Class Here

Patrick McCusker, Little Orleans, is attending classes at Catherman's Business School here.

Hairy stems of flowers, such as geraniums and zinnias, should have their stem ends split, or be dipped into boiling water or seared over a flame for a few seconds. This treatment, advises the Society of American Florists, will seal in the juice of the stem. When ever hairy or juicy stems are recut, they must be treated again.

B&O Picnic To Be Sat.

The annual outing and picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans and the Ladies Auxiliary will be held Saturday at Minke's Cottage Inn.

It will be in the form of a family basket picnic, and will be an all-day affair, beginning at approximately 10 a.m. The program includes games for all ages and prizes will be awarded to the children.

Mrs. Charles Hardy, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, and George Loar, president of the Veterans Club, are co-chairmen of arrangements.

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias and peonies, require more water to keep them fresh than smaller flowers. Submerging the entire arrangement, flowers and all, in water for a few minutes each day helps to prolong beauty of the flowers. Do not submerge such flowers as iris, delphiniums, and orchids, for they waterspot, the Society of American Florists says.

Attends Class Here

Patrick McCusker, Little Orleans, is attending classes at Catherman's Business School here.

Hairy stems of flowers, such as geraniums and zinnias, should have their stem ends split, or be dipped into boiling water or seared over a flame for a few seconds. This treatment, advises the Society of American Florists, will seal in the juice of the stem. When ever hairy or juicy stems are recut, they must be treated again.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Keep A Beauty Kit At The Office

You ought to display poise and polish all day long, of course, but there are times when you'd like to add an extra measure of each. The occasion may be an unusual "outside" assignment, an appointment, or a dinner date you hadn't anticipated.

Take the unknowns in best-foot-forward stride simply by preparing for them in advance. Establish a beauty cache in a desk drawer, equip it with easy-to-use grooming aids, and you can star in any command performance at a moment's notice.

Powder (the shade you regularly use), rouge, lipstick, and a comb will suffice for quick touch-ups. For the more thorough freshening, have tissues, cleanser, makeup base, hand cream or lotion, eyebrow pencil, shadow, and mascara.

I suggest that your kit contain products in bottles and tubes of a handy size, those which occupy a minimum of space, and can't leak or spill to damage paper with which they may share a drawer.

Supplement the cosmetics in your beauty box with these important items: an emery board and polish for manicure repair; needles and thread, to attend to a loose hem or a split seam; a miniature clothes brush; a flacon of your favorite cologne or perfume. It is also wise to keep an extra pair of hose in your desk.

Once you've assembled all the aids to beauty-at-work, keep them neat and clean, ready for instant use. A small box, covered so its contents won't be scattered, is a good receptacle for your grooming equipment.

When the time arrives to use this portable dressing table, take it to the ladies' lounge. The process of renewing your sparkle is not for others' eyes at any office hour.

Summer-fresh beauty . . . the year around! It's yours for the asking — just read SUMMERIZING YOUR BEAUTY. Send for your copy today (enclosing 10c and a stamped, return envelope) to Secrets of Charm, % this newspaper.

Powder (the shade you regularly use), rouge, lipstick, and a comb will suffice for quick touch-ups. For the more thorough freshening, have tissues, cleanser, makeup base, hand cream or lotion, eyebrow pencil, shadow, and mascara.

I suggest that your kit contain products in bottles and tubes of a handy size, those which occupy a minimum of space, and can't leak or spill to damage paper with which they may share a drawer.

Supplement the cosmetics in your beauty box with these important items: an emery board and polish for manicure repair; needles and thread, to attend to a loose hem or a split seam; a miniature clothes brush; a flacon of your favorite cologne or perfume. It is also wise to keep an extra pair of hose in your desk.

Once you've assembled all the aids to beauty-at-work, keep them neat and clean, ready for instant use. A small box, covered so its contents won't be scattered, is a good receptacle for your grooming equipment.

When the time arrives to use this portable dressing table, take it to the ladies' lounge. The process of renewing your sparkle is not for others' eyes at any office hour.

Two Rapists' Conviction Upheld By Appeals Court

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Maryland Court of Appeals upheld Wednesday the conviction of James V. and John G. Giles, Montgomery County brothers sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the rape of a 16-year-old girl.

In doing so, the high court reaffirmed the validity of a provision of the state constitution which allows a jury in a criminal case to determine how the law should be applied to that case as well as trying facts.

Maryland and Indiana are the only states which still adhere to the concept that a jury shall be the judge of the law as well as the facts in a criminal case. Indiana has modified its concept that a jury has exclusive determination of the law.

Attorneys for the Giles brothers contended that the Maryland provision violates the due process and equal protection clauses of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"We think not," said the high court in reaffirming a 1949 decision in which it upheld the constitional provision.

"So far as we are advised, the Supreme Court of the United States has not rendered any decision since (the 1949 ruling) which would now require a different result from that reached by this court.

"We recognize, of course, that all other states have either done away with or trimmed down the concept of a jury being judge of the law as well as the facts. But we were of the opinion then (1949), as we are now, that Section 5 of Article XV is not unconstitutional and that we are not bound, absent a decision of the supreme court to the contrary, to follow the rulings in other jurisdictions with respect to similar constitutional provisions."

The Giles brothers are Negroes, residing at Spencerville. The girl they were accused of raping is white.

Educational TV System For Md. Schools Sought

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland General Assembly will be asked for money to finance a six-station educational television system and the year-round employment of teachers.

"With the employment of at least the most able teachers for this extended period of time," the report said, "many activities could be successfully completed that are now attempted within a 10-month period and frequently fail because of the lack of time."

Maryland teachers are now employed and paid for 10 months of work.

The proposal for the educational TV system was made by T. Wilson Cahall of Washington County to the State Board of Education at a meeting Tuesday night. Operation of the six-station network for three years would cost an estimated $3,618,300.

Cahall's report suggesting changes in the state educational system were referred to a special committee. Both the Ford Foundation and the General Assembly will be asked for money to finance the proposals.

The plan or year-round employment of teachers, if put into effect for five years and involving 650 teachers, would cost an estimated $1,191,225.

Other proposals in the report included a work-study program for student teachers during their freshman and sophomore years; reorganization of teachers' colleges and other selected schools so they might become demonstration centers; statewide curriculum development, and a work-study program for principals and supervisors.

In return, the BTC had offered to convert its two remaining trolley car lines to buses, buy more modern equipment and expand express service.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The court psychiatrist described Jesse L. Adair, 19, Wednesday as "one of the most malignant individuals" he had ever studied.

A company spokesman said that more than 400 employes were sent home Wednesday. An official of the steelworkers union claimed the number was between 3,000 and 4,000.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Two teachers were granted Wednesday a trial by circuit court jury on charges of paddling an 8-year-old student.

The boy, Allen Marshall Ruck, spent 20 days in the Washington County Hospital.

The three-day meeting at Towson State Teachers College is sponsored by the Maryland State Teachers Association.

Participating teachers will serve as IMPA leaders in their respective counties during the 1962-63 school year. The local institutes are designed to aid teachers in becoming better informed concerning the organization and functions of local and state governments.

Thomas D'Alesandro 3rd, president of the Baltimore Board of Election Supervisors, will speak at a Thursday dinner meeting which will open the workshop. He will discuss the responsibilities of the board of election supervisors.

Sen. Goldwater Lauds Fife Symington

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Wednesday Fife Symington is the type of person needed in Congress.

Goldwater, agreeing to address a testimonial dinner for Symington in Pikesville Aug. 30, sharply criticized Symington's Democratic opponent for Congress in Maryland's 2nd District, Dr. Clarence Long of Johns Hopkins University.

Goldwater said he understood Long is "another intellectual theorist who preaches on every subject, eventually contradicting what he has previously advocated."

In a letter to David Scull, chairman of the Maryland Republican State Central Committee, Goldwater said of Symington:

"Fife is personally known to me and I consider him to be the type of individual that our country so badly needs, and so seldom acquires, for duty in our Congress.

"It is rare indeed that a person with his experience in international affairs, his experience in big and little business and his determination to serve his community offers himself as a candidate for national office."

Contracts Awarded For Work At ABL

Four companies have been awarded a total of five contracts amounting to $672,750 for construction work at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, according to John C. Foster, plant manager.

The Whiting Turner Contracting Company, Baltimore, was awarded a contract for $309,000 for construction work on Polaris pure explosives solvent facilities.

This work, scheduled for completion by December 7, 1962, includes construction of two major buildings, barricades, prefabricated metal auxiliary structures and supporting utility buildings. The facilities will be used to process casting solvent in connection with work on the Polaris missile.

The George F. Hazelwood Company, received a $99,440 contract to build three workers change houses, a precision rocket parts disassembly building, a barricade for Building 181, an area administration building, and a salvage yard with storage shed.

The contract also calls for converting existing Building 44, a general purpose warehouse, to a photographic storage house, including remodeling and installation of air conditioning. This work is expected to be completed by mid-October.

Another contract, totaling $148,000, was awarded to the George Construction Company for work on process research mixing facilities. The research facilities, to be used for experiments conducted by ABL's Research Department, will include a utility building, control house, four curing pits, and a pit cover building.

The pit cover building, a one-story frame structure with asbestos shingle siding, will be mounted on wheels which will run on tracks over the four pits. The complete facility will be operated by remote control and is slated for completion by September 26.

The Hazelwood Company was also awarded a $109,670 contract for work on additions to Process Building 167 and 207 where Polaris rocket chambers are processed.

The work will provide facilities for a chamber grit blast room addition, facilities for powder embedment, and relocation of a paint spray booth. This project is to be finished by the end of next month.

The R. H. Lapp Company, city was awarded a $6,640 contract for providing exterior utilities for Building 57. This phase of work is near completion.

Youth Given Year Term In Morals Case

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court sentenced a 17-year-old youth to a term not to exceed one year in the Maryland Institution for Men for indecent exposure.

Judge Harris read excerpts from a detailed report on the youth's background which was prepared by James Lewis, state probation officer.

The court stated that the report, which he termed excellent, showed the youth has never had a good family life and has been in various state institutions and orphanages for most of his life.

The youth lived for one eight-year period with a couple who adopted him and since that time has been rejected by his own mother. The court stated that with this type background the youth was unable to live in a normal manner and was very confused.

A report by a clinician of the Allegany County Health Clinic stated that he needed psychiatric treatment.

Judge Harris instructed the court stenographer to forward a letter to the state penal institution recommending the youth be transferred to Patuxent Institution for the psychiatric care.

The report by Lewis and also the mental health clinic report will also be sent to the superintendent of the penal institution.

City Firemen Answer Calls

City firemen answered two calls yesterday with only minor property damage reported.

Central and West Side responded around 5 a. m. when a neon sign caught fire at 305 South Centre Street. Slight damage was reported to the roof of the building.

Firemen from West Side responded to a call at the home of Kenneth K. King, 1023 Braddock Road, when bedroom curtains caught fire. Firemen said King's sons were conducting chemistry tests when the fire started. The blaze was out when firemen arrived.

Two Injured In Accident

Admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser were Leo Thomas Mertz, 22, of 443 Walnut Street, Westernport, and Russell Thomas Fisher, 22, of Green Street, Piedmont.

Mertz, who was identified as driver of the car, was admitted for observation, while Fisher sustained severe lacerations of his head and was in a state of shock when admitted. Both men were reported in "satisfactory" condition.

Tfc. Charles T. Snow of the Maryland State Police said the accident occurred at 11:40 p. m. on State Route 135 in Bloomington.

Police said Mertz was driving eastbound on the highway at an apparent high rate of speed when he failed to negotiate a sharp right curve. The driver lost control and struck an embankment on the left side of the roadway.

Police said the car was extensively damaged.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amused at the letter from the young man who didn't know how to go about kissing a girl.

It seems this is an age-old problem. I ran across a copy of the Louisiana Advance, published in Arcadia on August 16, 1889. The article was entitled "How Girls Want To Be Kissed." It certainly proves that human nature hasn't changed much in the past 73 years. A young woman wrote:

"I am getting tired of having my hats destroyed, my hair upset and my corsages torn to pieces by beginners. If the dear boys were told how to go about kissing their girls perhaps they would not make such a mess of it.

"It is not necessary, young man, to grab your girl as if she had just stolen a pocketbook. There is no necessity to clutch at her dress for dear life, or to pull her head forward with such intensity that her eyes are endangered by scarf pins or long pencils protruding from upper vest pockets.

"Bear in the mind, young man, the girl is not trying to get away. She has the same aim as you. Curve your arm tenderly around her waist and turn her toward you. Place your free arm around her shoulder and give her a gentle and soulful caress. Then let nature do her work."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've played cards with the same group of women for years. The current game is Canasta. It's a friendly game, but we play for fairly high stakes. Over a period of time, large sums of money have changed hands.

Recently I went away on a vacation and I asked a woman who is new in town to substitute for me. She's an excellent card player and gave me quite an earful when I returned.

She told me that Mrs. X. cheated and then she proceeded to tell me exactly how she did it. I was shocked. Mrs. X has been playing in our group for many years. She's been fantastically lucky. She rarely loses, and then only small amounts.

Now, Ann, what shall I do about it? Would it be best to say nothing and just drop out of the group? Or shall I tell the others what's been going on?—FLABBER GASTED

DEAR FLABBER: Say nothing for the time being. Play with the group as usual and keep your eye on Mrs. X. Since you've been clued in, it shouldn't be difficult to determine for yourself if she is cheating.

If she is, go to her privately and tell her you are aware of what she has been doing. Let her know you're willing to give her a chance to go straight. If after this warning she cheats again, stop her dead in her tracks and expose her to one and all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make it brief and to the point. Why in heaven's name would a beautifully educated fellow (also attractive and from a good family) marry a girl who is stupid, ignorant, and totally incapable of carrying on an intelligent conversation?

Thank you for enlightening me if you can.—BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: I guess this beautifully educated fellow is interested in other things besides intelligent conversation.

Confidential to DOCTOR BILL BLUES: "Running to doctors" when you are not sick is a sickness in itself. Your wife needs to talk this over with a specialist. Ask her foot doctor to send her to a head doctor.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Movies Must Change For Overseas Sale

NEW YORK (UPI) — Producer Martin Poll believes "insular" thinking is responsible for failure of some American movie-makers to realize a big profit in the world film market with pictures that make a lot of money in the United States.

"Colloquial humor must be replaced by international humor, if foreign audiences are to be expected to patronize our pictures," said Poll, an old TV hand who is in the midst of producing a motion picture called "The Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm" for United Artists release.

He cited such recent American comedies as Bill Wilder's "One, Two, Three" and Universal's "Operation Petticoat" as examples of films with wide international appeal.

"European producers," Poll said, "have been making inroads on the world market—and taking income away from our studios—because they are international in their thinking. We must become aware of the changing values of the world by getting out into it, not by thinking only in terms of Main Street, U.S.A.

"The mores of other countries often differ widely from ours. Situations or dialogue that we think of as sexy or suggestive may seem mmature to a foreigner.

"When in Rome, he average Hollywood producer stays at the Excelsior Hotel; in Paris, he puts up at the George V. He goes abroad to look for the same people he sees every day in Hollywood. That's hardly the way to develop an international point of view or to determine the likes and dislikes of foreign motion picture audiences."

Poll, who has lived off and on in Europe for several years, said he made three special trips to Europe to discuss matters with directors, producers and exhibitors in Britain, France, Italy and Spain before he made his final decision to produce "The Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm."

"We filmed it in Nice, St. Tropez and Switzerland," he said, "and the cast is a mixture of nationalities. Our stars are Glenn Ford, Hope Lange and Charles Boyer, which is a fair assortment right there.

"Great care with selection of a story and cast and getting an interesting locale are essential, but most important of all is mature thinking, the broad outlook, he international approach to humor. That's what makes box-office in 1962."

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amused at the letter from the young man who didn't know how to go about kissing a girl.

It seems this is an age-old problem. I ran across a copy of the Louisiana Advance, published in Arcadia on August 16, 1889. The article was entitled "How Girls Want To Be Kissed." It certainly proves that human nature hasn't changed much in the past 73 years. A young woman wrote:

"I am getting tired of having my hats destroyed, my hair upset and my corsages torn to pieces by beginners. If the dear boys were told how to go about kissing their girls perhaps they would not make such a mess of it.

"It is not necessary, young man, to grab your girl as if she had just stolen a pocketbook. There is no necessity to clutch at her dress for dear life, or to pull her head forward with such intensity that her eyes are endangered by scarf pins or long pencils protruding from upper vest pockets.

"Bear in the mind, young man, the girl is not trying to get away. She has the same aim as you. Curve your arm tenderly around her waist and turn her toward you. Place your free arm around her shoulder and give her a gentle and soulful caress. Then let nature do her work."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've played cards with the same group of women for years. The current game is Canasta. It's a friendly game, but we play for fairly high stakes. Over a period of time, large sums of money have changed hands.

Recently I went away on a vacation and I asked a woman who is new in town to substitute for me. She's an excellent card player and gave me quite an earful when I returned.

She told me that Mrs. X. cheated and then she proceeded to tell me exactly how she did it. I was shocked. Mrs. X has been playing in our group for many years. She's been fantastically lucky. She rarely loses, and then only small amounts.

Now, Ann, what shall I do about it? Would it be best to say nothing and just drop out of the group? Or shall I tell the others what's been going on?—FLABBER GASTED

DEAR FLABBER: Say nothing for the time being. Play with the group as usual and keep your eye on Mrs. X. Since you've been clued in, it shouldn't be difficult to determine for yourself if she is cheating.

If she is, go to her privately and tell her you are aware of what she has been doing. Let her know you're willing to give her a chance to go straight. If after this warning she cheats again, stop her dead in her tracks and expose her to one and all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make it brief and to the point. Why in heaven's name would a beautifully educated fellow (also attractive and from a good family) marry a girl who is stupid, ignorant, and totally incapable of carrying on an intelligent conversation?

Thank you for enlightening me if you can.—BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: I guess this beautifully educated fellow is interested in other things besides intelligent conversation.

Confidential to DOCTOR BILL BLUES: "Running to doctors" when you are not sick is a sickness in itself. Your wife needs to talk this over with a specialist. Ask her foot doctor to send her to a head doctor.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Movies Must Change For Overseas Sale

NEW YORK (UPI) — Producer Martin Poll believes "insular" thinking is responsible for failure of some American movie-makers to realize a big profit in the world film market with pictures that make a lot of money in the United States.

"Colloquial humor must be replaced by international humor, if foreign audiences are to be expected to patronize our pictures," said Poll, an old TV hand who is in the midst of producing a motion picture called "The Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm" for United Artists release.

He cited such recent American comedies as Bill Wilder's "One, Two, Three" and Universal's "Operation Petticoat" as examples of films with wide international appeal.

"European producers," Poll said, "have been making inroads on the world market—and taking income away from our studios—because they are international in their thinking. We must become aware of the changing values of the world by getting out into it, not by thinking only in terms of Main Street, U.S.A.

"The mores of other countries often differ widely from ours. Situations or dialogue that we think of as sexy or suggestive may seem mmature to a foreigner.

"When in Rome, he average Hollywood producer stays at the Excelsior Hotel; in Paris, he puts up at the George V. He goes abroad to look for the same people he sees every day in Hollywood. That's hardly the way to develop an international point of view or to determine the likes and dislikes of foreign motion picture audiences."

Poll, who has lived off and on in Europe for several years, said he made three special trips to Europe to discuss matters with directors, producers and exhibitors in Britain, France, Italy and Spain before he made his final decision to produce "The Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm."

"We filmed it in Nice, St. Tropez and Switzerland," he said, "and the cast is a mixture of nationalities. Our stars are Glenn Ford, Hope Lange and Charles Boyer, which is a fair assortment right there.

"Great care with selection of a story and cast and getting an interesting locale are essential, but most important of all is mature thinking, the broad outlook, he international approach to humor. That's what makes box-office in 1962."

Service Set Thursday For Dr. G. L. Bennett

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dr. George E. Bennett, a former semi-pro baseball player whose contributions to the sport helped prolong the careers of many of the game's stars, is dead at 77.

The famed orthopedic surgeon died in his Baltimore home Tuesday night shortly after suffering a heart attack.

Dr. Bennett's knowledge of the motions involved in playing baseball enabled him to correct painful ailments — sometimes merely by suggesting a player change his position to avoid a certain type of muscular exertion.

In addition, he played a major role in the development of batting helmet, which has been credited with preventing serious injury and even death during the past 10 years.

Dr. Bennett's prowess in treating baseball players became known outside Baltimore in 1923 when George Weiss left the Orioles to join the front office of the New York Yankees.

After that, players everywhere turned to him for advice. Many of them were sent by the Yankees, and included such stars as Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Tommy Heinrich, Phil Rizzuto, Frank Crosetti, Allie Reynolds, Red Rolfe and Lefty Gomez. Others included Dizzy Dean, Dixie Walker, Pee Wee Reese, Pete Reiser and Roy Sievers.

He kept a baseball bat in his office as part of the equipment, and would have players swing it so he could form an opinion on their problems.

Dr. Bennett disliked the notoriety that went with his treatment of athletes, and once remarked that they made up no more than "one-eight hundredth" of his practice.

The surgeon was recognized widely by medical men for his work in designing and perfecting certain orthopedic operations. He directed the establishment of the world's first iron lung center at Children's Hospital here in the 1940s. He was adjunct professor of orthopedic surgery at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine from 1931 until 1947, when his rank became emeritus.

He had served as president of the American Orthopedic Association and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

Born in Claryville, N.Y., Dr. Bennett received his professional training in Baltimore and practiced here more than 50 years.

His wife, the former Birdie A. Pendleton of Akron, Ohio, died a few years ago. Survivors include a niece, Miss Mary Bennett Vanderhoof of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Vanderhoof, of Geneva, N.Y.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at his home and a requiem mass at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen.

Burial will be in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE AMTOWER

Shanks, Mrs. Michael Selvestri and Mrs. William Warner, all of Akron; Miss Flora Amtower and Mrs. Denver Crew, both of Parkersburg; Mrs. Delphia Secrist, Petersburg; Mrs. Renzie Fink, Lonaconing, and Mrs. Nevada Amtower, New Creek; three sons, Hurshel, Lantz, and Lake Allen Amtower, all of here; a brother, Goldie Bosley, Elk Garden; two sisters, Mrs. George Lee Welch, and Mrs. Sylvia Keller, both of Cumberland; 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The body is at the Markwood Funeral Home where the family will receive friends today.

Services will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Rees Chapel. The body will be taken to the church at 1 p.m.

Service Set Thursday For Dr. G. L. Bennett

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dr. George E. Bennett, a former semi-pro baseball player whose contributions to the sport helped prolong the careers of many of the game's stars, is dead at 77.

The famed orthopedic surgeon died in his Baltimore home Tuesday night shortly after suffering a heart attack.

Dr. Bennett's knowledge of the motions involved in playing baseball enabled him to correct painful ailments — sometimes merely by suggesting a player change his position to avoid a certain type of muscular exertion.

In addition, he played a major role in the development of batting helmet, which has been credited with preventing serious injury and even death during the past 10 years.

Dr. Bennett's prowess in treating baseball players became known outside Baltimore in 1923 when George Weiss left the Orioles to join the front office of the New York Yankees.

After that, players everywhere turned to him for advice. Many of them were sent by the Yankees, and included such stars as Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Tommy Heinrich, Phil Rizzuto, Frank Crosetti, Allie Reynolds, Red Rolfe and Lefty Gomez. Others included Dizzy Dean, Dixie Walker, Pee Wee Reese, Pete Reiser and Roy Sievers.

He kept a baseball bat in his office as part of the equipment, and would have players swing it so he could form an opinion on their problems.

Dr. Bennett disliked the notoriety that went with his treatment of athletes, and once remarked that they made up no more than "one-eight hundredth" of his practice.

The surgeon was recognized widely by medical men for his work in designing and perfecting certain orthopedic operations. He directed the establishment of the world's first iron lung center at Children's Hospital here in the 1940s. He was adjunct professor of orthopedic surgery at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine from 1931 until 1947, when his rank became emeritus.

He had served as president of the American Orthopedic Association and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

Born in Claryville, N.Y., Dr. Bennett received his professional training in Baltimore and practiced here more than 50 years.

His wife, the former Birdie A. Pendleton of Akron, Ohio, died a few years ago. Survivors include a niece, Miss Mary Bennett Vanderhoof of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Vanderhoof, of Geneva, N.Y.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at his home and a requiem mass at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen.

Burial will be in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE AMTOWER

Surviving are her husband, George (Tom) Amtower; eight daughters, Mrs. J. R. Shanks, Mrs. Michael Selvestri and Mrs. William Warner, all of Akron; Miss Flora Amtower and Mrs. Denver Crew, both of Parkersburg; Mrs. Delphia Secrist, Petersburg; Mrs. Renzie Fink, Lonaconing, and Mrs. Nevada Amtower, New Creek; three sons, Hurshel, Lantz, and Lake Allen Amtower, all of here; a brother, Goldie Bosley, Elk Garden; two sisters, Mrs. George Lee Welch, and Mrs. Sylvia Keller, both of Cumberland; 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The body is at the Markwood Funeral Home where the family will receive friends today.

Services will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Rees Chapel. The body will be taken to the church at 1 p.m.

County Crippled League Founder Dies In Baltimore

A feeling of personal loss was experienced yesterday by many Cumberlanders and Allegany Countians upon learning of the death of Dr. George E. Bennett, internationally-known orthopedic specialist, Tuesday night in Baltimore at the age of 77.

DR. GEORGE E. BENNETT

It was Dr. Bennett who organized and, to a great extent, developed the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, which was incorporated through William A. Gunter, local attorney, and a group of local subscribers back in 1934.

Among those subscribers was the late Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, at one time a patient of Dr. Bennett's who became the League's first chairman and who is credited with having played a big role in the League's development.

Other subscribers were W. Ralph Bretz, Mt. Savage; Mrs. James C. Cobey, Frostburg; Mrs. Lloyd Shaw, Barton; Mrs. George W. Legge, Morris Rosenbaum, Thomas B. Finan, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, all now deceased; Mrs. Sara R. Getty, J. William Hunt, William A. Gunter, and then State Senator J. Glenn Beall.

His first contact with Allegany County came in 1926, when the groundwork for organizing the local League was begun.

In Dr. Bennett's own words, written in 1944:

"In 1926, Miss Anne Sloan, of Lonaconing, made an appointment to see me at my (Baltimore) office. I soon was to learn that this was not a professional call but a mission of interest in the crippled children of Allegany County . . . After telling me her story, she asked if I would arrange to have one of the younger men come to Allegany County and conduct an orthopedic clinic . . .

"Of course, 18 years ago I considered myself a young man and, therefore volunteered to come to Lonaconing and hold such a clinic. So, in Miss Sloan's home, in November, 1926, with the assistance of her friends and Mrs. Isabella C. Thompson Laughlin, of the Allegany County Health Department, we held our first clinic and saw nearly 90 crippled children, many of them badly in need of operative and other treatment.

"This was the beginning of what has proved to be one of the most gratifying accomplishments of my professional life."

Shortly thereafter, Dr. William S. Baer established a similar clinic in Cumberland and Dr. Bennett joined him in the "tremendous work we found ahead of us."

In 1934, the Allegany County League for Crippled Children was founded, with Miss Schwarzenbach as president.

The first of what was to be many clinics conducted "non persona gratis" by the famed physician was in 1928, and his last visit here was for the spring clinic May 15-16, 1959.

In 1934, Dr. Bennett remarked that there were 450 to 500 crippled children in Allegany County. Through his work and sponsorship, the caseload handled today by the League is 1,600.

One of the world's greatest authorities on the cure of infantile paralysis and other bone diseases in children, Dr. Bennett referred to the Allegany County League several times as second to none in the nation.

In early years of the League, Dr. Bennett conducted clinics in the City Hall basement every two months. Eventual organization cut the number down to four a year, and then twice yearly.

Through his efforts, and those of Dr. George O. Eaton, who trained under Dr. Bennett and who accompanied him here for clinics, services rendered today by the League were developed.

Dr. E. David Weinberg, native of Lonaconing, Baltimore orthopedic specialist, conducts clinics here, as does Dr. Eaton. Dr. Edward A. Kitlowski, plastic surgeon specialist, visits here annually, and Dr. Winthrop Phelps, Baltimore conducts periodic cerebral palsy clinics at the local League.

It was Dr. Bennett who helped greatly in the institution of the League's physical therapy, speech therapy (through Dr. Phelps) and visiting nurse programs, as well as home teaching for those crippled children not able to attend school.

A deep feeling of personal loss was experienced by Mrs. Vivian O. Annan, who served as executive secretary of the League from 1937 to 1956. Mrs. Annan had worked with Dr. Bennett in Baltimore as a nurse, and several times attended his wife.

Of his death, Mrs. Annan, a resident of Breakneck Road, said: "Dr. Bennett was an outstanding man. I consider him a personal friend and had great admiration for him. He was diligent, conscientious, and a very well-informed physician. I am sure that most who knew him feel that it was a privilege to be acquainted with him."

Mrs. Henrietta Lippold, present executive secretary, first came in contact with Dr. Bennett when she was a clinician.

Upon hearing of his death, she remarked:

"Dr. Bennett's death means a great loss to us here in Cumberland. We are constantly reminded of the formation of the League through Dr. Bennett and Miss Schwarzenbach and how their dreams became a reality. We relied on his judgment in caring for all cases, and followed his recommendations.

"We feel fortunate that Dr. Eaton, who comes from the same office as Dr. Bennett, has stepped in to help us carry on the work in the same manner Dr. Bennett prescribed."

Dr. Bennett was honored here in June, 1959, when the Crippled Children League observed its silver anniversary with a dinner at the Cumberland Country Club, for which Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, then treasurer of the United States, was principal speaker.

County Crippled League Founder Dies In Baltimore

A feeling of personal loss was experienced yesterday by many Cumberlanders and Allegany Countians upon learning of the death of Dr. George E. Bennett, internationally-known orthopedic specialist, Tuesday night in Baltimore at the age of 77.

It was Dr. Bennett who organized and, to a great extent, developed the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, which was incorporated through William A. Gunter, local attorney, and a group of local subscribers back in 1934.

Among those subscribers was the late Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, at one time a patient of Dr. Bennett's who became the League's first chairman and who is credited with having played a big role in the League's development.

Other subscribers were W. Ralph Bretz, Mt. Savage; Mrs. James C. Cobey, Frostburg; Mrs. Lloyd Shaw, Barton; Mrs. George W. Legge, Morris Rosenbaum, Thomas B. Finan, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, all now deceased; Mrs. Sara R. Getty, J. William Hunt, William A. Gunter, and then State Senator J. Glenn Beall.

His first contact with Allegany County came in 1926, when the groundwork for organizing the local League was begun.

In Dr. Bennett's own words, written in 1944:

"In 1926, Miss Anne Sloan, of Lonaconing, made an appointment to see me at my (Baltimore) office. I soon was to learn that this was not a professional call but a mission of interest in the crippled children of Allegany County . . . After telling me her story, she asked if I would arrange to have one of the younger men come to Allegany County and conduct an orthopedic clinic . . .

"Of course, 18 years ago I considered myself a young man and, therefore volunteered to come to Lonaconing and hold such a clinic. So, in Miss Sloan's home, in November, 1926, with the assistance of her friends and Mrs. Isabella C. Is Red China Nearing The End?

Time of reckoning for Mao Tse-tung and his communist cohorts in mainland China may be close at hand. If it is, the cause is communism's failure to produce enough food for the country's 700 million people.

Back in 1958 Mao announced the "great leap forward" for China. Great emphasis was placed on communal farms and on producing plenty, so that industry could be built up. But administrative bungling and successive crop failures converted the great leap into a gigantic stumble.

Red China was forced to turn to Canada and Australia for enough grain to maintain bare subsistence levels.

Washington was on the verge of allowing sales of surplus grain to Red China. The administration was almost committed to allowing the sales if the Chinese formally requested such action. But overwhelming public and congressional opposition killed all chance of it.

New estimates indicate that the diet level in Red China is only 1,500 calories a day. This is a drop from all former guesses.

With starvation comes dissatisfaction and eventually rebellion. Some sources even report that the army is on the point of revolt. The British believe that the troop build-up opposite Quemoy and Matsu is really aimed at suppressing a possible internal rebellion.

For Mao Tse-tung, this can be described only as a year of crisis. If the predicted crop shortages occur, the people may rise in rebellion and have the army on their side. Communism has failed to produce as promised in China—and people with empty stomachs are not inclined to keep on believing empty promises of a better future.

It is by no means certain but it is within the realm of possibility that the end is in sight for the communist regime in China. If it is, another communist failure will have been clearly demonstrated for all the world to see.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Democrats In New York

Thus far, the Democrats in New York have not come up with a candidate who can be elected against Nelson Rockefeller, the present incumbent. This cannot be satisfactory to the Kennedys who need to knock Rockefeller out in 1962 so that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency in 1964.

The Democratic Party in New York is split and splintered. The Reformers, organized by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Senator Herbert Lehman to rid the Party of Carmine De Sapio, is in splinters. The dominant group among the Reformers is led by such very clever women as Mrs. Anna Rosenberg who is shortly to become Mrs. Paul Hoffman, and Mrs. Mary Lasker. They managed to get rid of Carmine De Sapio but they have not been able to control the Reformers whom they brought into power.

They have thus far failed to destroy the Bronx Democratic leader, Charles Buckley. President Kennedy has made it clear that he prefers Buckley. They permitted the mayor, Robert Wagner, to give the impression that he is the Democratic leader of the state and have thus separated him from leadership groups in up-state counties. They have damaged the influence of the Keoghs in Brooklyn and have thereby left that enormous Democratic population without the leadership to which they are accustomed.

To a by-stander, it would almost seem as though they sought to make it possible for Rockefeller to run against nobody and get elected. The normal leadership in the Democratic Party is incensed by the conduct of the Reform Group and is seeking explanations, some of which are obvious in the personal and business relations of the various individuals involved.

As the young man said to his lady love, "Tempus fugit and let's go on!" There is very little time left before the Democrats must decide on a candidate who can defeat Rockefeller. Such a candidate must have state-wide popularity; he must have a following among old-line Democrats and at the same time be satisfactory to the Liberal Party leader, Alex Rose. He must be satisfactory to Negro and Italian leadership and he must not, in his career, have established a record offensive to Jews. He must appeal to dissatisfied Republicans of which there are many.

This is the demographic nature of New York State and politics must follow it. The Kennedys face an intricate situation here and it is easy to make a mistake about it. The so-called "nice," "well-informed" people can speak for Park and Fifth Avenues, but they do not know Albany or Syracuse or Buffalo any better than they do Brooklyn or Greenwich Village. "Nice" people are most often wrong in politics because voting is local and by prejudice. To know Adam Clayton Powell is to know only one phase of Harlem where the Black Nationalists vote as a body.

The old-line politician does not generalize. He has his ear to the ground; he mends fences; he makes deals and kisses babies; he does favors and gets jobs. He is a professional.

The Reformers are not professionals. They are puffed up because they managed to get rid of Carmine De Sapio, the Democratic leader, who removed himself by a series of unbelievable errors. He substituted prejudice for sound judgement. As gratitude is not a virtue among politicians, as soon as John F. Kennedy was elected President, De Sapio found that most of his friends and supporters were such no longer. He was out. It was not the Reformers who destroyed De Sapio's leadership; he did it himself.

Thus far, there has been no successor to De Sapio and that is why the Democrats are in such difficulties. This state is as large in population as Canada. It is diverse economically, ethnologically and religiously and these are the principal ingredients of the Vote.

The manipulation of the Vote requires skill and a specialized experience. Franklin D. Roosevelt possessed political charm, but the skill and experience which brought him to the Governorship of New York State rested with such competent persons as Al Smith, James Farley and Belle Moskowitz. Jim Farley brought Roosevelt into the Presidency. When Roosevelt got there, he knew what to do to stay there.

This kind of professional competence does not appear in the New York State Democratic Party at this moment and unless someone gets busy to supply it, Rockefeller may not be defeated.

AMA Centers Pressure On Eight Key Congressmen To Defeat Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The doctors claim they don't know anything about politics, but they are sure learning fast. Not only have they raised an estimated $7,000,000 for defeating the medicare bill, but they have picked just exactly the eight key Congressmen who can bottle up the bill in the House Ways and Means Committee.

They have not scattered their money and their lobbying pressure wholesale. They have been deadeye dicks.

Of course they have also spent a lot of money on leaflets which American Medical Association members sent out with their monthly bills. And they have spent a lot of money on newspaper ads and TV time. But when it came to Congressional strategy they figured out that the Democrats had ten solid votes for medicare inside the Ways and Means Committee, with seven Republicans equally firm against it. This left five Democrats and three Republicans who have been reluctant to vote for the bill, but are somewhat on the fence.

It was on these eight that the AMA lobby centered its pressure. It knew that if the medicare bill ever got out of the Ways and Means Committee for a vote by the full House it would pass. So desperate efforts were made to prevent that vote.

The Key Eight

Here are the eight Congressmen who hold the key to the future of the medical care bill and how the doctors' lobby is working on them:

Chairman Wilbur Mills, Arkansas Democrat—AMPAC, the political arm of the AMA, offered a generous contribution to Mills, who turned it down. He has no serious political opposition and needs no help. However, AMPAC's state chairman, an Arkadelphia physician, named Dr. Jack Kennedy incidentally, has passed the word to local medics to back Mills.

Congressman James Frazier, Tennessee Democrat—AMPAC not only coughed up cash for Frazier's campaign kitty but called upon Chattanooga doctors to raise additional funds. Frazier faces tough opposition in the August 2 primary from popular Wilkes Thrasher Jr. Explained Dr. J. J. Montfort, a member of AMPAC's strategy board, to my associate Jack Anderson: "Frazier needed money for his campaign. We stimulated the doctors down there to get busy, and they did. We are contributing from the national treasury on a matching basis."

Congressman Howard Baker, Tennessee Republican—Dr. Donald Wood, chairman of the doctors' candidate-selection committee, cited AMPPAC's support of Democrat Frazier and Republican Baker in Tennessee as evidence that the doctors are bipartisan. However, Baker has no serious opposition, therefore needs less help from the doctors.

Congressman Sydney Herlong, Florida Democrat—Herlong also needs no help to win re-election in November. Yet the local doctors, led by Dr. Eugene Peek Jr., of Ocala, have put on a strong drive to help Herlong. They even brought Dr. Edward Annis, the national AMA head, to the district to campaign for Herlong. Dr. Annis is the man who scared Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami half out of his wits and into denying he was a Kennedy backer. The incident took place shortly after Kennedy took a special trip to Florida to help Fascell.

Congressman Tom Curtis, Missouri Republican—An alleged liberal, Curtis was expected to line up with such GOP Senators as Javits of New York, Cooper of Kentucky, Kuchel of California, and Keating of New York in favor of medical benefits for the elderly. But AMPAC, according to Dr. Wood contributed to Curtis who suddenly turned cool toward medicare.

Congressman John Watts, Kentucky Democrat—AMPAC not only donated directly to Watts' campaign but stimulated the local doctors into raising funds. One who helped raise money for Watts in order to influence his vote against medicare was Dr. Harold C. Haynes Jr., of Lexington, who also wrote to destitute, 78-year-old Mrs. Hattie Baker: "I regret to inform you that until your outstanding account has been taken care of, I will no longer be able to render you medical care."

Congressman Herman Schneebeli, Pennsylvania Republican—In college, Schneebeli was a roommate of New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller who came into Pennsylvania to campaign for Schneebeli. But Schneebeli now seems more impressed by the doctors' financial help than Rockefeller's friendship. For he has ignored an appeal from Rockefeller to vote for medicare. Rockefeller is a strong backer of the bill.

Congressman Clark Thompson, Texas Democrat—AMPAC offered financial help for Thompson's campaign, but Dr. Harvey Ringer of Hallettsville, Tex., insisted that the doctors in Thompson's district could raise all the money he needed. They contacted every doctor, dentist, and hospital administrator in the district and held a luncheon and a barbecue to raise money.

Merry-Go-Round Sidelights

On November 3, 1959, Panamanians led a demonstration against the American Embassy in the Canal Zone, tore down the American flag, ripped it to shreds, and desecrated it. The man who led this riot was Augustine Boyd, former foreign minister. This bitter critic of the USA has just been appointed Panamanian ambassador to the United Nations. The appointment was made shortly after President Kennedy and President Chiari staged a display of friendship in Washington . . . . Sen. "Hummon" Talmadge, elected Senator from Georgia as the champion of Georgia red-necks, voted for Wall Street and big business the other day when it came to collecting withholding taxes on dividends. So did Russell Long of Louisiana, whose daddy, Huey P. Long, taxed the big utilities in order to supply free school books to Louisiana children. So did Gene McCarthy of Minnesota, generally a champion of the underdog . . . . Despite the businessmen's attacks, President Kennedy consoles himself that both public and private polls show his popularity remains remarkably high. McNamara Sets Out To Reform Armed Services

By Joseph Alsop

Among the new men in the Kennedy Cabinet, none has won more applause than Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. Nonetheless, McNamara is now the target of what looks very like the first ranging shots in a major barrage.

The ranging shots are being fired from Uncle Carl Vinson's House Armed Services Committee, where resentment still smolders because of McNamara's sturdy refusal to increase spending on the B-70 long-range bomber. But there are plenty of other people, all the way from the National Guard to the Navy, who may be tempted to join the atteck on McNamara later on.

In these circumstances, it is worth trying to understand what McNamara is trying to do in the Defense Department, and to see why this effort is bound to make great numbers of highly placed enemies for the formidable Defense Secretary.

What McNamara is trying to do has only been attemped twice before, in the whole course of modern history. After the Boer War, Lord Haldane reformed the British Army. At about the same time Elihu Root reformed the U. S. Army.

Without the Haldane and Root reforms, the British and American Armies would never have survived the test of the first World War. But both armies were then miniscule, easily manageable organizations, by modern standards. These, moreover, are the only armed forces that have ever been reformed in modern times, except by that great root-and-branch reformer, defeat in war.

Yet McNamara has now set out to reform all three of the U. S. armed services at once. The nature of the task, as well as its magnitude, is best conveyed by an image.

Armed services, like all long-enduring bureaucratic organisms, have their own habits of growth, like plants. The history of the American armed services long ago imposed on them the habit of growth of desert plants, which die down to dry roots for years on end, and then put forth enormously lush growth when the rains come.

For desert plants, this lushness is a necessity. The survival of their race depends on making as many seeds as possible, so that a few at least will germinate.

For the U. S. armed services in the old days the same rule held true. A service cannot grow, almost overnight, from a couple of hundred thousand to several million, without growing lushly and even in some measure wastefully. And this was what the U. S. services were traditionally required to do in war time.

This formerly useful lush habit of growth is highly unsuitable, however, for a cold war, in which large forces in being must be permanently maintained. As a result, the American services today rather resemble an old maid's cacti, which always tend to be puffy and off-color because they are overwatered. McNamara is out to banish lushness, and to impose a new habit of growth that will be more spare, tough, and wiry.

Also no bureaucratic organism can ever reform itself, the job must be done from without, by the Secretary of Defense. The job cannot be done at all without a sharp centralization of authority in the Secretary's own hands, which is one thing McNamara's critics are complaining about. Three huge problems have to be solved if the job is to be done successfully.

First, the Pentagon machinery must be tightened up, and forced to do its work, in the sense of producing clear decisions. This McNamara has accomplished.

Second the armed services' ingrained habit of adding new weapons systems, without ever junking old weapons systems, has got to be broken at all cost. In order to pay for the best new weapons systems, the older systems replaced simple have to be abandoned, thereby causing all the pangs among big bomber-generals, for instance, that were formerly felt by battleship-admirals and cavalry-generals. McNamara has made a bold start here, and this has largely sparked the present attack.

Third, superfluous elements, like the most politicial elements of the National Guard, have got to be sacrificed. And more difficult still, it is urgent to correct the civilianization of the permanent armed services, by the proliferation of huge headquarters, by thePX life and by other such post-war phenomena. McNamara is only beginning to tackle these culminating tasks.

The job he has undertaken to do appeared to be utterly impossible to do, until McNamara suddenly emerged from the depths of the Ford Motor Co. He has got far further forward with the job already than anyone could have imagined possible. It is to be hoped that he will be allowed to finish the job, dispite the bitter opposition that he must increasingly expect.

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN? —Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, a Republican from New York, is proud of his political affiliation and his wit. Thus, when a newspaper mis-identified him as Sen. Kennedy B. Keating, he wrote the editors the following letter:

"While the President is an old friend of mine, and we share a broad area of disagreement, I want to make it clear that I have not paid him the compliment of changing my first name from Kenneth to Kennedy.

No less magnanimous than Voltaire, shall defend to the death your right to a slip of the pen, but I think you will agree that the name 'Kennedy D. Keating' somewhat clouds my true Republican image."

Some observers of the political scene are wondering whether this wouldn't be a good thing for the senator, who is scheduled to run for reelection in 1964 when Kennedy is expected to be seeking a second term in the White House. They suspect he could pick up some votes in traditionally Democratic New York City if he could somehow persuade the electorate that he does have political ties with the President.

Where Is Paula?

By Perry Wolff

(While John Crosby is on vacation, his column will be written by guests. Today's contributor is Perry Wolff, CBS producer).

When I was 16 I knew a girl named Paula who carried Proust on the bus and read comic strips at home. Paula taught me much, much of which I have forgotten, but I remember her well, reading "Swann's Way" on the way to Senn High, looking as spiritueIle as she dared. Until Paula, I had thought the purpose of Art was to find Truth: she taught me that the use of Art was to make Intellectuals.

Paula knew she would never finish even one volume of "Remembrance of Things Past," but she carried both. She thought it nice that fashionable things were weighty. (I was, too). Heavy things showed that a girl was making a little effort. (The ending was predictable. In the warm summer I gave way to a long-legged track man from the University of Chicago, and Proust gave way to T. S. Eliot's slim "Four Quartets.").

T. S. Eliot broke a Midwestern boy's heart twice: once with Paula, and once when Newton Minow echoed him with his "vast wasteland" speech — though I'm sure Paula stopped talking about television long before Mr. Minow drafted my epitaph. About three years ago Paula would have seen that television was out, demodee, untouchable, unthinkable, and immoral—the correct word would have been troublesome, until the Eliot-Minow contribution appeared. The nicety of "wasteland" would have been apparent to her; it threw television out, with a fashionable twist, and relieved Paula from the necessity of watching it die. By definition, nobody visits a wasteland. In a single phrase, the rupture between television and intellectuals became complete.

The signs had been there for years. Vogue's "People Are Talking About" column is so disdainful that it is no longer even nasty about television. Harper's, The Atlantic Monthly, and other magazines Paula carried, hoist their skirts and walk bravely through television only where there's no way around it. The New Yorker rose above TV years ago. The Sunday Times places its television page just before stamps and gardening. Time magazine has made a fine taxonomic distinction, in which television is classified as "Show Business," although "Theatre" and "Cinema" presumably neither give shows nor are engaged in business.

These minor persecutions could be endured except that they have fed back into television. The standard cocktail party line is "I work in it, but I don't watch it." People who make their living creating for television now have their feet in video and their eyes on films, stage, or literature. The intellectuals hauled down their flag a few years ago, and joined the slip-stick time buyers who determine value on a cost-per-thousand basis. Television is officially an Industry and not an Art.

The very language of television reflects the slide from esthetic to commercial terms. "Programs" have become "packages"; "artists" have become "pieces of talent"; "ideas" have become "devices" or "gimmicks." It is as if the surveyors of programs wish they sold something hard and touchable, like steel or leather.

It is probably unfair to blame Paula, but it is hard not to castigate the whole class of American intellectuals for not making a better fight. By no longer attacking the sins of television they abandoned an influence which touches 100,000,000 Americans nightly. One of the symptoms of intellectual fever is the fear that whatever is popular is (by definition) low. It was put best by August Heckscher, advisor to President Kennedy on the Arts, who in a recent speech made the astounding statement, "The community of art must guard itself against being overrun by popular tastes. It is easier to maintain excellence in the arts in an age when the arts are comparatively neglected than when they are embraced enthusiastically by the great mass." Would Mr. Heckscher have turned the groundlings out of the Globe Theatre?

The government has to bear a great deal of the blame. It is no secret that the networks abandoned creative programming when the Justice Department hinted at an anti-trust suit because the chains controlled too much of the programming. Yet, a few years later, the FCC hints that the networks are at fault because they do not control enough of their programming. Which show is to be dropped?

It might also help if the networks were to take a financial loss for a short period of time, and spend money trying out some new programs. If the networks like to talk about "product" and "commodity" and fool themselves into believing that they are selling tangible, hard goods, they might as well go all the way. The truly big industries spend fortunes on research and development of new products. The fact is that television has been slapping new paint on old models each year. The goods are out-of-date.

Surgery For Puffy Eyelids Tricky Procedure

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Bagginess of the lower eyelids is asociated usually with fatigue, overindulgence in alcohol, kidney disorders, or allergy. But perfectly normal individuals may awaken in the morning with an accumulation of fluid in these tissues which disappears rapidly via gravity after being up and about.

Swelling also may be caused by kernels of fat which come from the padding that surrounds and supports the orbits in their sockets. This condition generally is heredity and often develops in the late teens. Surgical removal of the excess fat restores the contour but it is a tricky procedure. When too much is removed, a hollow depression developes beneath the lower lid.

Orientals have beautiful lids but they are baggy, according to our concepts. Their lids are full because they lack the arched fold that parallels the upper lid margin in other races. Thus wrinkling stems from fibrous bands attached to a fold of the skin. In the Mongolian eye, this band is not attached to the skin and the result is a smooth, full lid. Thus common form of heredity bagginess can be changed by the plastic surgeon. All that need be done is to attach the fibrous band to the skin.

With age, we all can expect changes in the skin surrounding the eyes. It is likely to sag with excess wrinkling due to lack of tone. Crow's feet develop and fat deposits add to the puffiness.

The plastic surgeon is able to correct these conditions and suggests that the operation be done when the condition causes self-consciousness or unhappiness. The redundant skin is removed from the lids and the face is lifted to make it conform to the new look around the eyes.

The scars rarely show; those of the upper lid fall into the fold that parallels the edge, whereas the scar in the lower lid is hidden by the lashes. The incisions required to lift the face are made in the scalp and along the ear margins.

Second or third operations may be needed if the person lives long enough. The surgeon may be able to turn back the clock temporarily but the skin continues to change despite his best efforts.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on puffy eyelids if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

HERNIATED DISK

D. W. writes: What can you tell me about a carvical laminectory?

REPLY

Cervical (in this case) refers to the neck region, lamina to a part of the vertebra, and ectomy is removal of. In this operation, part of a vertebra is removed to correct a defect in the spinal cord or the nerves emerging from it. Cervical laminectomy is done most frequently to remove a protruding disk in the upper spine that is causing pain in the neck, shoulder, or arm.

BLOOD LASTS SO LONG

Mrs. J. F. writes: After a person has a transfusion, does that blood stay with him for life?

REPLY

No. The blood cells live out their life span and the liquid part mixes with the fluids of the body and is eliminated via the kidneys.

HAIR KILLING

REPLY

Hairs should not return if the root has been destroyed by electrolysis. Other hairs ought not to be mistaken for regrowth.

EYEBALL GROWTH

D. C. writes: Can a pterygium growing on one eye be dissolved by drops or is surgery necessary?

REPLY

Surgery — when this flat, tonguelike strip of tissue grows over the pupil.

ANXIETY NEUROSIS

Mrs. S. writes: Can an anxiety neurosis be cured after it recurs? One medical doctor told me it would pass whether I go to a psychiatrist or not.

REPLY

The condition may remedy itself but you should obtain help if you are greatly disturbed. Have you considered a program that might prevent recurrences?

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Recent pyrotechnics in the Wall Street area have sent gagsters scurrying to the files to resuscitate stories that helped ease scorched investors' pains during the 1929 crash. It was Eddie Cantor who suggested that the tickers print prices on rope instead of paper—so that at the close of the market speculators could hang themselves. He also told of one man who, despite the collapse, actually made a killing in the market. He shot the manager of an A. and P.

A deflated "genius of finance" admitted, "Since I lost my last cent, half my friends no longer speak to me." He was asked, "How about the other half?" He replied, "They don't know it yet!"

A visitor to an Indian reservation near Tucson noticed one old squaw who had an expression of sublime serenity on her face. The visitor asked the squaw respectfully, "With the world in its present state, how do you manage to achieve such obviously complete tranquility?"

"It's easy," confided the old squaw. "I take two tranquilizers, three times a day."

Frank Boyden, famous headmaster of Deerfield Academy, has a little poem always on tap for lazy students:

"You can't go far just by wishing
Nor by sitting around to wait:
The good Lord provides the fishing—
But you have to dig the bait."

Is Red China Nearing The End?

Time of reckoning for Mao Tse-tung and his communist cohorts in mainland China may be close at hand. If it is, the cause is communism's failure to produce enough food for the country's 700 million people.

Back in 1958 Mao announced the "great leap forward" for China. Great emphasis was placed on communal farms and on producing plenty, so that industry could be built up. But administrative bungling and successive crop failures converted the great leap into a gigantic stumble.

Red China was forced to turn to Canada and Australia for enough grain to maintain bare subsistence levels.

Washington was on the verge of allowing sales of surplus grain to Red China. The administration was almost committed to allowing the sales if the Chinese formally requested such action. But overwhelming public and congressional opposition killed all chance of it.

New estimates indicate that the diet level in Red China is only 1,500 calories a day. This is a drop from all former guesses.

With starvation comes dissatisfaction and eventually rebellion. Some sources even report that the army is on the point of revolt. The British believe that the troop build-up opposite Quemoy and Matsu is really aimed at suppressing a possible internal rebellion.

For Mao Tse-tung, this can be described only as a year of crisis. If the predicted crop shortages occur, the people may rise in rebellion and have the army on their side. Communism has failed to produce as promised in China—and people with empty stomachs are not inclined to keep on believing empty promises of a better future.

It is by no means certain but it is within the realm of possibility that the end is in sight for the communist regime in China. If it is, another communist failure will have been clearly demonstrated for all the world to see.

Democrats In New York

Thus far, the Democrats in New York have not come up with a candidate who can be elected against Nelson Rockefeller, the present incumbent. This cannot be satisfactory to the Kennedys who need to knock Rockefeller out in 1962 so that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency in 1964.

The Democratic Party in New York is split and splintered. The Reformers, organized by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Senator Herbert Lehman to rid the Party of Carmine De Sapio, is in splinters. The dominant group among the Reformers is led by such very clever women as Mrs. Anna Rosenberg who is shortly to become Mrs. Paul Hoffman, and Mrs. Mary Lasker. They managed to get rid of Carmine De Sapio but they have not been able to control the Reformers whom they brought into power.

They have thus far failed to destroy the Bronx Democratic leader, Charles Buckley. President Kennedy has made it clear that he prefers Buckley. They permitted the mayor, Robert Wagner, to give the impression that he is the Democratic leader of the state and have thus separated him from leadership groups in up-state counties. They have damaged the influence of the Keoghs in Brooklyn and have thereby left that enormous Democratic population without the leadership to which they are accustomed.

To a by-stander, it would almost seem as though they sought to make it possible for Rockefeller to run against nobody and get elected. The normal leadership in the Democratic Party is incensed by the conduct of the Reform Group and is seeking explanations, some of which are obvious in the personal and business relations of the various individuals involved.

As the young man said to his lady love, "Tempus fugit and let's go on!" There is very little time left before the Democrats must decide on a candidate who can defeat Rockefeller. Such a candidate must have state-wide popularity; he must have a following among old-line Democrats and at the same time be satisfactory to the Liberal Party leader, Alex Rose. He must be satisfactory to Negro and Italian leadership and he must not, in his career, have established a record offensive to Jews. He must appeal to dissatisfied Republicans of which there are many.

This is the demographic nature of New York State and politics must follow it. The Kennedys face an intricate situation here and it is easy to make a mistake about it. The so-called "nice," "well-informed" people can speak for Park and Fifth Avenues, but they do not know Albany or Syracuse or Buffalo any better than they do Brooklyn or Greenwich Village. "Nice" people are most often wrong in politics because voting is local and by prejudice. To know Adam Clayton Powell is to know only one phase of Harlem where the Black Nationalists vote as a body.

The old-line politician does not generalize. He has his ear to the ground; he mends fences; he makes deals and kisses babies; he does favors and gets jobs. He is a professional.

The Reformers are not professionals. They are puffed up because they managed to get rid of Carmine De Sapio, the Democratic leader, who removed himself by a series of unbelievable errors. He substituted prejudice for sound judgement. As gratitude is not a virtue among politicians, as soon as John F. Kennedy was elected President, De Sapio found that most of his friends and supporters were such no longer. He was out. It was not the Reformers who destroyed De Sapio's leadership; he did it himself.

Thus far, there has been no successor to De Sapio and that is why the Democrats are in such difficulties. This state is as large in population as Canada. It is diverse economically, ethnologically and religiously and these are the principal ingredients of the Vote.

The manipulation of the Vote requires skill and a specialized experience. Franklin D. Roosevelt possessed political charm, but the skill and experience which brought him to the Governorship of New York State rested with such competent persons as Al Smith, James Farley and Belle Moskowitz. Jim Farley brought Roosevelt into the Presidency. When Roosevelt got there, he knew what to do to stay there.

This kind of professional competence does not appear in the New York State Democratic Party at this moment and unless someone gets busy to supply it, Rockefeller may not be defeated.

AMA Centers Pressure On Eight Key Congressmen To Defeat Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The doctors claim they don't know anything about politics, but they are sure learning fast. Not only have they raised an estimated $7,000,000 for defeating the medicare bill, but they have picked just exactly the eight key Congressmen who can bottle up the bill in the House Ways and Means Committee.

They have not scattered their money and their lobbying pressure wholesale. They have been dead-eye dicks.

Of course they have also spent a lot of money on leaflets which American Medical Association members sent out with their monthly bills. And they have spent a lot of money on newspaper ads and TV time. But when it came to Congressional strategy they figured out that the Democrats had ten solid votes for medicare inside the Ways and Means Committee, with seven Republicans equally firm against it. This left five Democrats and three Republicans who have been reluctant to vote for the bill, but are somewhat on the fence.

It was on these eight that the AMA lobby centered its pressure. It knew that if the medicare bill ever got out of the Ways and Means Committee for a vote by the full House it would pass. So desperate efforts were made to prevent that vote.

The Key Eight

Here are the eight Congressmen who hold the key to the future of the medical care bill and how the doctors' lobby is working on them:

Chairman Wilbur Mills, Arkansas Democrat—AMPAC, the political arm of the AMA, offered a generous contribution to Mills, who turned it down. He has no serious political opposition and needs no help. However, AMPAC's state chairman, an Arkadelphia physician, named Dr. Jack Kennedy incidentally, has passed the word to local medics to back Mills.

Congressman James Frazier, Tennessee Democrat—AMPAC not only coughed up cash for Frazier's campaign kitty but called upon Chattanooga doctors to raise additional funds. Frazier faces tough opposition in the August 2 primary from popular Wilkes Thrasher Jr. Explained Dr. J. J. Montfort, a member of AMPAC's strategy board, to my associate Jack Anderson: "Frazier needed money for his campaign. We stimulated the doctors down there to get busy, and they did. We are contributing from the national treasury on a matching basis."

Congressman Howard Baker, Tennessee Republican—Dr. Donald Wood, chairman of the doctors' candidate-selection committee, cited AMPPAC's support of Democrat Frazier and Republican Baker in Tennessee as evidence that the doctors are bipartisan. However, Baker has no serious opposition, therefore needs less help from the doctors.

Congressman Sydney Herlong, Florida Democrat—Herlong also needs no help to win re-election in November. Yet the local doctors, led by Dr. Eugene Peek Jr., of Ocala, have put on a strong drive to help Herlong. They even brought Dr. Edward Annis, the national AMA head, to the district to campaign for Herlong. Dr. Annis is the man who scared Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami half out of his wits and into denying he was a Kennedy backer. The incident took place shortly after Kennedy took a special trip to Florida to help Fascell.

Congressman Tom Curtis, Missouri Republican—An alleged liberal, Curtis was expected to line up with such GOP Senators as Javits of New York, Cooper of Kentucky, Kuchel of California, and Keating of New York in favor of medical benefits for the elderly. But AMPAC, according to Dr. Wood contributed to Curtis who suddenly turned cool toward medicare.

Congressman John Watts, Kentucky Democrat—AMPAC not only donated directly to Watts' campaign but stimulated the local doctors into raising funds. One who helped raise money for Watts in order to influence his vote against medicare was Dr. Harold C. Haynes Jr., of Lexington, who also wrote to destitute, 78-year-old Mrs. Hattie Baker: "I regret to inform you that until your outstanding account has been taken care of, I will no longer be able to render you medical care."

Congressman Herman Schneebeli, Pennsylvania Republican—In college, Schneebeli was a roommate of New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller who came into Pennsylvania to campaign for Schneebeli. But Schneebeli now seems more impressed by the doctors' financial help than Rockefeller's friendship. For he has ignored an appeal from Rockefeller to vote for medicare. Rockefeller is a strong backer of the bill.

Congressman Clark Thompson, Texas Democrat—AMPAC offered financial help for Thompson's campaign, but Dr. Harvey Ringer of Hallettsville, Tex., insisted that the doctors in Thompson's district could raise all the money he needed. They contacted every doctor, dentist, and hospital administrator in the district and held a luncheon and a barbecue to raise money.

Merry-Go-Round Sidelights

On November 3, 1959, Panamanians led a demonstration against the American Embassy in the Canal Zone, tore down the American flag, ripped it to shreds, and desecrated it. The man who led this riot was Augustine Boyd, former foreign minister. This bitter critic of the USA has just been appointed Panamanian ambassador to the United Nations. The appointment was made shortly after President Kennedy and President Chiari staged a display of friendship in Washington . . . . Sen. "Hummon" Talmadge, elected Senator from Georgia as the champion of Georgia red-necks, voted for Wall Street and big business the other day when it came to collecting withholding taxes on dividends. So did Russell Long of Louisiana, whose daddy, Huey P. Long, taxed the big utilities in order to supply free school books to Louisiana children. So did Gene McCarthy of Minnesota, generally a champion of the underdog . . . . Despite the businessmen's attacks, President Kennedy consoles himself that both public and private polls show his popularity remains remarkably high. One private survey, taken by pollster Lou Harris, showed Kennedy would defeat Governor Rockefeller in his own New York State by a two-to-one majority.

T. S. Eliot broke a Midwestern boy's heart twice: once with Paula, and once when Newton Minow echoed him with his "vast wasteland" speech — though I'm sure Paula stopped talking about television long before Mr. Minow drafted my epitaph. About three years ago Paula would have seen that television was out, demodee, untouchable, unthinkable, and immoral—the correct word would have been troublesome, until the Eliot-Minow contribution appeared. The nicety of "wasteland" would have been apparent to her: it threw television out, with a fashionable twist, and relieved Paula from the necessity of watching it die. By definition, nobody visits a wasteland. In a single phrase, the rupture between television and intellectuals became complete.

The signs had been there for years. Vogue's "People Are Talking About" column is so disdainful that it is no longer even nasty about television. Harper's, The Atlantic Monthly, and other magazines Paula carried, hoist their skirts and walk bravely through television only where there's no way around it. The New Yorker rose above TV years ago. The Sunday Times places its television page just before stamps and gardening. Time magazine has made a fine taxonomic distinction, in which television is classified as "Show Business," although "Theatre" and "Cinema" presumably neither give shows nor are engaged in business.

These minor persecutions could be endured except that they have fed back into television. The standard cocktail party line is "I work in it, but I don't watch it." People who make their living creating for television now have their feet in video and their eyes on films, stage, or literature. The intellectuals hauled down their flag a few years ago, and joined the slip-stick time buyers who determine value on a cost-per-thousand basis. Television is officially an Industry and not an Art.

The very language of television reflects the slide from esthetic to commercial terms. "Programs" have become "packages"; "artists" have become "pieces of talent"; "ideas" have become "devices" or "gimmicks." It is as if the surveyors of programs wish they sold something hard and touchable, like steel or leather.

It is probably unfair to blame Paula, but it is hard not to castigate the whole class of American intellectuals for not making a better fight. By no longer attacking the sins of television they abandoned an influence which touches 100,000,000 Americans nightly. One of the symptoms of intellectual fever is the fear that whatever is popular is (by definition) low. It was put best by August Heckscher, advisor to President Kennedy on the Arts, who in a recent speech made the astounding statement, "The community of art must guard itself against being overrun by popular tastes. It is easier to maintain excellence in the arts in an age when the arts are comparatively neglected than when they are embraced enthusiastically by the great mass." Would Mr. Heckscher have turned the groundlings out of the Globe Theatre?

The government has to bear a great deal of the blame. It is no secret that the networks abandoned creative programming when the Justice Department hinted at an anti-trust suit because the chains controlled too much of the programming. Yet, a few years later, the FCC hints that the networks are at fault because they do not control enough of their programming. Which show is to be dropped?

It might also help if the networks were to take a financial loss for a short period of time, and spend money trying out some new programs. If the networks like to talk about "product" and "commodity" and fool themselves into believing that they are selling tangible, hard goods, they might as well go all the way. The truly big industries spend fortunes on research and development of new products. The fact is that television has been slapping new paint on old models each year. The goods are out-of-date.

Surgery For Puffy Eyelids Tricky Procedure

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Bagginess of the lower eyelids is asociated usually with fatigue, overindulgence in alcohol, kidney disorders, or allergy. But perfectly normal individuals may awaken in the morning with an accumulation of fluid in these tissues which disappears rapidly via gravity after being up and about.

Swelling also may be caused by kernels of fat which come from the padding that surrounds and supports the orbits in their sockets. This condition generally is heredity and often develops in the late teens. Surgical removal of the excess fat restores the contour but it is a tricky procedure. When too much is removed, a hollow depression developes beneath the lower lid.

Orientals have beautiful lids but they are baggy, according to our concepts. Their lids are full because they lack the arched fold that parallels the upper lid margin in other races. Thus wrinkling stems from fibrous bands attached to a fold of the skin. In the Mongolian eye, this band is not attached to the skin and the result is a smooth, full lid. Thus common form of heredity bagginess can be changed by the plastic surgeon. All that need be done is to attach the fibrous band to the skin.

With age, we all can expect changes in the skin surrounding the eyes. It is likely to sag with excess wrinkling due to lack of tone. Crow's feet develop and fat deposits add to the puffiness.

The plastic surgeon is able to correct these conditions and suggests that the operation be done when the condition causes self-consciousness or unhappiness. The redundant skin is removed from the lids and the face is lifted to make it conform to the new look around the eyes.

The scars rarely show; those of the upper lid fall into the fold that parallels the edge, whereas the scar in the lower lid is hidden by the lashes. The incisions required to lift the face are made in the scalp and along the ear margins.

Second or third operations may be needed if the person lives long enough. The surgeon may be able to turn back the clock temporarily but the skin continues to change despite his best efforts.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on puffy eyelids if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

HERNIATED DISK

D. W. writes: What can you tell me about a carvical laminectory?

REPLY

Cervical (in this case) refers to the neck region, lamina to a part of the vertebra, and ectomy is removal of. In this operation, part of a vertebra is removed to correct a defect in the spinal cord or the nerves emerging from it. Cervical laminectomy is done most frequently to remove a protruding disk in the upper spine that is causing pain in the neck, shoulder, or arm.

BLOOD LASTS SO LONG

Mrs. J. F. writes: After a person has a transfusion, does that blood stay with him for life?

REPLY

No. The blood cells live out their life span and the liquid part mixes with the fluids of the body and is eliminated via the kidneys.

HAIR KILLING

REPLY

Hairs should not return if the root has been destroyed by electrolysis. Other hairs ought not to be mistaken for regrowth.

EYEBALL GROWTH

D. C. writes: Can a pterygium growing on one eye be dissolved by drops or is surgery necessary?

REPLY

Surgery — when this flat, tonguelike strip of tissue grows over the pupil.

ANXIETY NEUROSIS

Mrs. S. writes: Can an anxiety neurosis be cured after it recurs? One medical doctor told me it would pass whether I go to a psychiatrist or not.

REPLY

The condition may remedy itself but you should obtain help if you are greatly disturbed. Have you considered a program that might prevent recurrences?

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Recent pyrotechnics in the Wall Street area have sent gagsters scurrying to the files to resuscitate stories that helped ease scorched investors' pains during the 1929 crash. It was Eddie Cantor who suggested that the tickers print prices on rope instead of paper—so that at the close of the market speculators could hang themselves. He also told of one man who, despite the collapse, actually made a killing in the market. He shot the manager of an A. and P.

A deflated "genius of finance" admitted, "Since I lost my last cent, half my friends no longer speak to me." He was asked, "How about the other half?" He replied, "They don't know it yet!"

A visitor to an Indian reservation near Tucson noticed one old squaw who had an expression of sublime serenity on her face. The visitor asked the squaw respectfully, "With the world in its present state, how do you manage to achieve such obviously complete tranquility?"

"It's easy," confided the old squaw. "I take two tranquilizers, three times a day."

Frank Boyden, famous headmaster of Deerfield Academy, has a little poem always on tap for lazy students:

"You can't go far just by wishing
Nor by sitting around to wait:
The good Lord provides the fishing—
But you have to dig the bait."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD — Lucky Ski Nose! The way Bob Hope's "A Global Affair" is lining up with international beauties for Bob Hope to make love to, that title could be changed to "Global Affairs." Producer Hall Bartlett, is off to Europe gunning for the following very female females for rapid Robin to woo:

Claudia Cardinale of Italy.
Jeanne Moreau of France.
Romy Schneider of Germany.

And Shanna Prokkorenko, of Russia - the latter being the Soviet's reigning beauty, with whom Bartlett hopes to arrange a 'cultural exchange' deal.

With good American money thrown in to boot, I can't exactly see these international lovelies turning down this chance with America's favorite laughing boy.

"For an actor of Yul Brynner's stature to ask for me for three pictures in a row is a lot more than I ever bargained for - and it makes me proud," Brad Dexter tells me. No more had Brad's hair grown back from his bald role with Yul in "Taras Bulba," than Brynner sent for the good looking Dexter (now with hair aplenty) to join him in Tokyo for "Flight From Ashiya." Harold Hecht is producing.

"And that's not the whole deal," Brad went on, "after this picture, I have a deal to make 'The Mound Builders' with Brynner in Yucatan, Mexico, with J. Lee Thompson directing. How lucky can I get?" in these days of slim pickings, how lucky indeed?

That worried look on Vic Damone's face is due to the miles and miles of legal red tape in which he's entangled with the Italian courts and his ex-wife Pier Angeli to have his son Perry spend part of each year with him in the USA.

If he is unable to get a permanent adjustment, Vic says, "at least I hope to get permission to bring Perry back with me for a month after I wrap up my forthcoming concert tour in Europe." He feels strongly about Perry being completely out of contact with the country where the boy was born.

His work is going well with Vic. He's getting a fortune for the European tour and his new TV series "The Lively Ones" debuts Thursday over NBC.

Richard Beymer's just gotta be nervous about making "Promise At Dawn," Romain Gary's story, with Ingrid Bergman. Before he joins Ingrid in Europe he's taking a month off to brush up on his acting at the Actors Studio in New York!

Considering that Beymer is a pretty fair country actor already and is the star of one of 20th's biggies, "Hemmingway's Adventures Of A Young Man" this running back to school again can be inspired sheerly by nervousness over co-starring with Ingrid.

If Sandra Church keeps on in her current "elevated" romance with professor Harold Fishman of UCLA, and it looks solid, she better check her accident insurance. The professor's specialty is economics, but his hobby is mountain climbing and Sandra spent last weekend hanging on a crag on the side of Mt. Whitney. You'll excuse me if I say it's a high level romance in more ways than one?

Any way you figure it, Sandra's living dangerously. Week days she's Marlon Brando's leading lady in "The Ugly American."

With all the fireworks shooting off about "Cleopatra" and "Mutiny On The Bounty" one of the most neglected super spectacles is "Lawrence Of Arabia" which has been going along getting itself done in that rarest of ways these days - a business like, sane manner.

There hasn't been a single pouting spell between stars Alec Guinness, Jack Hawkins, Anthony Quinn, Jose Ferrer, Peter O'Toole and Arthur Kennedy. And difficult locations in the Moroccan desert, Spain and Jordan have been accomplished without running up Sam Spiegel's production costs to $30,000,000 or so. In fact "Lawrence" may be the dark horse hit of the big three when the chips are down.

It's off to a great premiere - with Queen Elizabeth in attendance in London on December 10th.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Nice to welcome home the wanderers! Latest "runaway" back home is Cesar Romero who's been two and a half months in Spain making "Valley Of The Swords." Just ten days in town, and he's off to Honolulu for John Wayne's "Donovan's Reef" - but when that's completed Butch says he's staying put awhile.

Ricky Nelson's little girl friend, Chris Harmon (daughter of sportscaster Tom Harmon), is taking a look of her own at show biz. She has a part of one of the teenage cuties in "Bye, Bye Birdie" while Rick's on his highly successful singing tour.

Mickey Callan, just split from his wife and heading on a tour plugging "The Interns," has been asked to sing the theme song from the film, titled - wouldn't you know? - "The Greatest Love."

Henry Fonda would very much like to do a movie with son Peter. but Hank drew the line at "Dangerfield," Barnaby Conrad's new novel, in which he'd have to play a 60-year-old father of a young son.

If Jack Buetel of "Outlaw" fame and subsequent westerns marries Mrs. Jo Ann Crawford in Honolulu, as friends expect, he'll be a richer cowboy than ever. She owns a fortune in Oregon ranches.

A gap in declarer's technique led to his downfall in a vulnerable slam contract today. An examination of the combined holdings will quickly reveal that the six-spade bid was not the soundest of undertakings. If a measure of blame is to be meted out, perhaps it should be directed at North. Had his three-spade bid been based in part on a distributional feature, such as a doubleton club for example, the hand might have been a laydown. With an evenly balanced holding and all suits protected, a jump response to two no trump might have been a wiser choice by North. This could conceivably have served to slow South down in the later rounds of bidding.

West chose to open the jack of diamonds against the slam bid which was a very fortunate choice for his side. Any other lead would have given declarer a chance to dispose of his diamond loser on the dummy's third heart and then only one club trick need have been conceded. With the diamond opening prospects appeared hopeless to the declarer. With a fatalistic gesture, he covered the lead with dummy's queen of diamonds and thereby surrendered all chance of success. East won the trick with the king and then tried to cash the ace. South ruffed and proceeded to run all his tricks. However, West held on firmly to the ten of diamonds while East protected the clubs, and at the end a club was conceded for down one.

With only eleven tricks at his disposal, it should have been clear to declarer after the opening lead that his only hope was to find all the missing assets in diamonds and clubs in the possession of one opponent, and then to apply pressure against that player. By cashing all his winners, South may be able to force the defender to surrender his protection in one of the suits. In order for this plan to succeed, however, it is essential to retain dummy's queen of diamonds as a threat card.

After the jack of diamonds holds, suppose that West continues with another diamond. Dummy plays low again as South ruffs. Now, all the trumps are run followed by the high hearts. Dummy comes down to the queen of diamonds and the ace, seven of clubs, while declarer has left the king, eight, six of clubs. East is unable to hold the ace of diamonds and still retain a club stopper, so that on the last heart he must surrender the slam fulfilling trick to his opponent.

Busy Day Ahead? Here's A Time-Saving Dinner

If you are a woman of many jobs, as homemakers are these days, you want to find ways to save time with the day-in-and-day-out ones. It is good that meal-preparation-time can be cut without sacrifices of quality or nutritional value. Much as some of us enjoy making a hobby of cooking when we have the time — there are certain days when we have to remember the businessman's slogan, "You can't do today's job with yesterday's methods."

Just to illustrate how creative you can be in planning a quick meal, we suggest an Italian-style menu. Frozen sliced zucchini squash and Italian bread sticks casserole. A green salad made gay and more nutritious with frozen mixed vegetables (recipe below) marinated in the vinegar and oil dressing. For dessert — we suggest fruit — a combination of frozen fruits such as whole strawberries and grapefruit sections or frozen blueberries with frozen peach slices.

This is the way to manage the menu: On the morning of your busy day, place the frozen fruit, still in its container, in the food storage section of your refrigerator so it is defrosted ready for serving come the dinner hour. Also while cleaning up after breakfast cook the frozen mixed vegetables about ten minutes and have them marinate in the dressing during the day. Final dinner preparations will take only half an hour.

A variety of frozen seafood dishes and frozen poultry casseroles offer other choices for time-saving meals — take a good look at the frozen food display in your supermarket, where you will find all kinds of inspiration for more interesting meals that are quick to prepare.

Frozen Mixed Vegetables in Garden Salad

1 (10-oz.) package frozen mixed vegetables
½ cup vinegar and oil dressing or Italian dressing
½ head lettuce
½ bunch romaine
Curly endive, if desired
2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
½ cup sliced celery or sliced cucumbers
6 radishes, sliced

Cook frozen mixed vegetables by directions on package. Drain (reserving liquid for soups, gravies, or sauces) and cool. Pour dressing over vegetables and chill for at least an hour or all day. Just before serving tear greens into bite-size pieces and cut tomatoes, celery, and radishes. Place in salad bowl and toss with chilled cooked vegetables and their dressings. Serves six.

Perfection Salad

10 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1¼ quarts cold water
1¾ quarts boiling water
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1½ cups vinegar
1 cup lemon juice
1 quart finely shredded cabbage
1 quart diced celery
1½ cups finely diced green pepper
1 cup diced pimiento

Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve in boiling water. Stir in sugar, salt vinegar, and lemon juice, until sugar is dissolved. Chill to unbeaten egg white consistency. Fold in prepared vegetables. Pour into one pan, 18-x-12-x-2-inches, or two pans 13-x-9½-x-2-inches. Chill until firm. Cut into 48 squares or oblongs for serving. Serve on crisp lettuce garnished with mayonnaise, or cooked salad dressing.

YIELD: 48 three-ounce servings.

Shortcake In The Pink

It is hard to improve a strawberry shortcake, but it is possible. Strawberry Whipped Cream accomplishes the feat. The delicious flavor and vivid pink color of the whipped cream derive from the same strawberry-flavored mix you use in the children's milk. Combine ¼ cup quick strawberry-flavored mix with a dash of salt and 1 cup heavy cream. Beat until thick.

Cranberry Relish Salad

1 pkg. raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 cup cranberry orange relish, drained

Follow directions on raspberry gelatin package. When mixture begins to jell fold in 1 cup cranberry orange relish. Pour into molds and chill until firm. When ready to serve, unmold and decorate with fresh cranberries.

Cranberry Orange Relish: Put through food chopper 4 cups fresh cranberries, 2 oranges (quartered and seeded). Add 2 cups sugar. Mix well and chill in refrigerator. Makes 4 cups cranberry orange relish.

About 40 named varieties of alfalfa, in addition to common alfalfa, are grown on about 30 million acres in the United States.

Chop Accompaniment

Broiler meats, especially broiled lamb chops, are popular menu headliners on warm days. As colorful complements, tomato halves may be topped with grated cheese or buttered bread crumbs. A peach or apricot half could be filled with a marshmallow. Both of these lamb chop partners may be broiled right with the chops as they finish cooking on the second side.

Flavor, Color Of Honey Related To Flowers

Hundreds and hundreds of acres of flowers make honey, honey and more honey. A combination of garden flowers, sweet clover, alfalfa, sage, orange, star thistle and buckwheat, all offer their springtime bloom to the hungry bee, and in part determine the texture of honey. Some individual types of bloom produce honey which is crystal clear. Others result in a short period of time in crystal solids, while others help form crystals which do not solidify, therefore combinations are most desirable.

The 1961-62 record production of honey was offered a choice of varieties, colors and flavors to the people who like to eat it as a spread, or use it as honey-in-the-comb, or in liquid form. Honey used in baking results in keeping the product moist and palatable.

Rhubard And Peach Honey Cobbler

1 box (1 pound) quick frozen rhubarb, thawed
1 box (10 ounces) quick frozen sliced peaches thawed
1½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
⅔ cup honey
1 cup sifted flour
1½ teaspoons double acting baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon mace or nutmeg
⅓ cup butter or other shortening
¼ cup milk

Drain the rhubarb and peaches, reserving the juices. Combine juices with tapioca and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add honey. Remove from heat. Add rhubarb and peaches to the thickened juice. Pour into 2-quart baking dish.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, sugar, salt and nutmeg, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually stirring until a soft dough is formed. Turn out on lightly-floured board and knead 10 seconds or enough to shape. Pat or roll dough to fit top of baking dish. Cut several slits in center and adjust dough over fruit mixture, opening slits with knife to permit escape of steam. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 30 minutes. Serve hot or cold with honey-sweetened whipped cream. (Honey gives a delicious flavor and helps whipped cream to hold up longer.) Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Roasting Leg Of Lamb

A leg of lamb has a thin, paper-like covering called the fell. This should be left on during roasting for a juicier, easier-to-carve roast and to help the leg of lamb hold its shape during cooking.

The largest ocean, the Pacific, has an average depth of more than 14,000 feet.

How To Make A Salad

Wash Greens: Wash greens with lukewarm water to make creases in leaves open so sand or soil washes out. Trim wilted leaves from greens. Core head lettuce and let water run through.

Dry Them: Drain excess water from head lettuce on a rack, tea towel or paper towels. Drain or toss leafy greens on a tea towel or paper towels. Store in plastic bags or in refrigerator crisper for several hours or overnight before using.

Your Salad Bowl: Choose any shape in porcelain, glass, wood or plastic, large enough for tidy tossing of prepared salad. Chill bowl before using.

Tear Greens by Hand: Lettuce, romaine and other greens look fresher and prettier if you tear them into bite-size pieces by hand rather than cutting or chopping them.

Chop or Cut Other Ingredients: Cut celery on the bias, peppers in rings, tomatoes in wedges, fruit in balls or sections for variety and interest. Do not cut or add tomatoes until just before serving. (The juice runs out and "thins" salad dressing.)

Chill Salad Until Serving Time: Cover salad in salad bowl with aluminum foil or plastic cover and refrigerate WITHOUT DRESSING until ready to toss and serve.

All this is but preparation for the final touch that makes the salad.

Select a Dressing — Italian, French, DeLuxe French, Russian or Cheese.

There are two kinds of Italian and French Dressings. The Low Calorie Italian and Low Calorie French are comparatively new and provide a sensible way of cutting calories. The flavors are the same.

If the dressing has been opened and stored in the refrigerator (as it should be), take it out when you put the greens in. The ingredients blend more readily when you shake the bottle, if the dressing isn't too cold. (To shake, place hand on bottle with thumb on neck and shake in a side-ways motion).

At serving time, make the tossing a real event. Do it in the kitchen or at the table, but do it with a flourish. Pour just enough dressing to cover thoroughly all greens—no dressing should be left in the bottom of the bowl. When the leaves glisten, serve with pride.

Batter Up

Mellow unsulphured molasses and spices add zip to waffle batter. To the ingredients called for on the package mix, add 2 tablespoons unsulphured molasses, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and ¼ teaspoon ginger.

Almond-Tuna Scallop

That old-salt of fishdom, canned tuna, is featured for ALMOND-TUNA SCALLOP. A 7-ounce can is combined with 1 pint toasted bread cubes, tasteful touches of lemon juice and chopped parsley, and ½ cup finely chopped celery. The fish mixture is then matched with 1 cup of medium-thick white sauce, to which ½ cup grated sharp cheese is added and stirred till melted. A greased 1-quart casserole holds the resulting mixture, to be sprinkled with sliced almonds before baking in a 350° F. oven for 25 minutes. To serve: Dot with bits of bright, chopped parsley.

Roasting Leg Of Lamb

A leg of lamb has a thin, paper-like covering called the fell. This should be left on during roasting for a juicier, easier-to-carve roast and to help the leg of lamb hold its shape during cooking.

The largest ocean, the Pacific, has an average depth of more than 14,000 feet.

How To Make A Salad

Wash Greens: Wash greens with lukewarm water to make creases in leaves open so sand or soil washes out. Trim wilted leaves from greens. Core head lettuce and let water run through.

Dry Them: Drain excess water from head lettuce on a rack, tea towel or paper towels. Drain or toss leafy greens on a tea towel or paper towels. Store in plastic bags or in refrigerator crisper for several hours or overnight before using.

Your Salad Bowl: Choose any shape in porcelain, glass, wood or plastic, large enough for tidy tossing of prepared salad. Chill bowl before using.

Tear Greens by Hand: Lettuce, romaine and other greens look fresher and prettier if you tear them into bite-size pieces by hand rather than cutting or chopping them.

Chop or Cut Other Ingredients: Cut celery on the bias, peppers in rings, tomatoes in wedges, fruit in balls or sections for variety and interest. Do not cut or add tomatoes until just before serving. (The juice runs out and "thins" salad dressing.)

Chill Salad Until Serving Time: Cover salad in salad bowl with aluminum foil or plastic cover and refrigerate WITHOUT DRESSING until ready to toss and serve.

All this is but preparation for the final touch that makes the salad.

Select a Dressing — Italian, French, DeLuxe French, Russian or Cheese.

There are two kinds of Italian and French Dressings. The Low Calorie Italian and Low Calorie French are comparatively new and provide a sensible way of cutting calories. The flavors are the same.

If the dressing has been opened and stored in the refrigerator (as it should be), take it out when you put the greens in. The ingredients blend more readily when you shake the bottle, if the dressing isn't too cold. (To shake, place hand on bottle with thumb on neck and shake in a side-ways motion).

At serving time, make the tossing a real event. Do it in the kitchen or at the table, but do it with a flourish. Pour just enough dressing to cover thoroughly all greens—no dressing should be left in the bottom of the bowl. When the leaves glisten, serve with pride.

Batter Up

Mellow unsulphured molasses and spices add zip to waffle batter. To the ingredients called for on the package mix, add 2 tablespoons unsulphured molasses, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and ¼ teaspoon ginger.

Almond-Tuna Scallop

That old-salt of fishdom, canned tuna, is featured for ALMOND-TUNA SCALLOP. A 7-ounce can is combined with 1 pint toasted bread cubes, tasteful touches of lemon juice and chopped parsley, and ½ cup finely chopped celery. The fish mixture is then matched with 1 cup of medium-thick white sauce, to which ½ cup grated sharp cheese is added and stirred till melted. A greased 1-quart casserole holds the resulting mixture, to be sprinkled with sliced almonds before baking in a 350° F. oven for 25 minutes. To serve: Dot with bits of bright, chopped parsley.

Culinary Showmanship While Entertaining

There is real culinary showmanship in cooking the main course of a meal right at the table. That is perfectly possible (perfectly delicious, too) when the menu centers around Filet of Sole Amandine. This classic dish features sole seasoned with wine and garnished with almonds.

California Chablis would be an excellent choice for use both in the recipe and as the mealtime beverage. The relatively high acid content in Chablis makes it a complimentary favorite to serve with fish.

Filet Of Sole Amandine

(Serves 4)

- 4 fillets of fresh sole, or 1 (1-lb.) package frozen
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon pepper
- ¾ teaspoon paprika
- 4 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ½ cup pale dry cocktail Sherry, or dry white table wine
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ cup toasted slivered almonds
- Lemon sections

If frozen fillets are used, thaw just enough to separate. Combine salt, pepper, paprika, and flour. Coat fish on both sides with seasoned flour. Heat oil to 370 degrees in an electric skillet and brown the fillets. Remove fish to a hot platter and keep warm. Add wine and lemon juice to the oil in the skillet; simmer at about 200 degrees for 3 minutes; replace fish in sauce and keep warm at 150 to 180 degrees. Do not cover skillet or the fish will lose its crispness. At serving time, sprinkle with almonds and serve with lemon sections. Variation: Peel 4 small bananas, cut into halves lengthwise, and simmer in the wine sauce above. One half teaspoon ground ginger may be added also.

The Aurora Australis is the Antarctic equivalent of the Aurora Borealis (Northern Lights).

Potatoes Supreme

au gratin potatoes with a flair

- 6 medium potatoes, cooked (5 cups, diced)
- 1 cup dairy sour cream (8 oz.)
- 2 cups cottage cheese (16 oz.)
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1-2 tablespoons grated onion
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- ½ cup shredded American cheese
- Dash paprika

Cooking Frozen Roasts

Frozen roasts can be cooked in the same manner as fresh roasts except that it will take ⅓ to ½ again as long for the cooking time. Insert the meat thermometer during the middle of the cooking time, after the meat has thawed.

The peach has long been cultivated in China and was written about some 2,000 years before its introduction to the Roman world.

LITTLE WOMEN

"Promise me you'll vote against me if they nominate me for anything."

"Emily can't face the idea that she's getting older."

Nutty

Sweet talk snack is a cereal-nut combo to make at home and reheat later in a wire popcorn popper over a camp fire. Mix 2 cups each of puffed wheat and ready-to-eat-bite-sized oat cereal with ½ cup of pecan or walnut pieces in a shallow pan. Toast 10 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven. Mix lightly with 1-3 cup of melted butter. Toss with ¼ cup of sugar mixed with ½ teaspoon of cinnamon. Return to oven 8 to 10 minutes more. Makes 4½ cups.

Cranberry Cottage Salad

Mound about ⅓ cup cottage cheese onto crisp lettuce for each serving. Make an indentation in the top of each mound and spoon about 2 tablespoons Cranberry-Orange relish into it.

The Hanseatic League was a loose but effective organization of north German towns functioning principally for trade purposes.

Begin Day With Good Breakfast

"The better the breakfast, the better the day." Eating a good breakfast is one way of fortifying oneself for the stress and strain of the day ahead, nutrition experts tell us.

But tempting that early morning appetite is often a problem. We need something to spark the breakfast menu, something worth getting up for.

The spicy aroma of sausage is one of the most potent invitations to breakfast, Reba Staggs, home economist, reminds us. She has a suggestion for a tasty combination of sausage with the breakfast fruit — in this case, pineapple.

Sausage and Pineapple

- 1 pound country-style or sausage links
- 2 tablespoons water
- 6 slices pineapple

Cut country-style sausage in 2-inch lengths, or use link sausage. Place sausage in frying-pan. Add water, cover and simmer 5 to 8 minutes. Remove cover and allow water to evaporate and sausage to brown. Remove sausage, and brown pineapple slices in drippings. Serve sausage over pineapple.

Another way to combine sausage and pineapple is this one, using crushed pineapple. After the cooked sausage has been removed to a hot platter, leave two tablespoons of the sausage fat in the pan. Add 2 tablespoons of flour and brown. Then add 1½ cups crushed pineapple and stir until it is heated. Pour the pineapple mixture over triangles of toast and place sausage on top.

Council Meets At Piedmont

Police Report Is Submitted

PIEDMONT — Mayor Donald M. Mellor announced at the meeting of the city council Tuesday, that the immediate area around the new city building will be blacktopped today by the Liller Brothers, Cumberland, at a cost of $350.

It was decided that the balance of money in the building fund, $2,585, be transferred to the general fund for street repairs and maintenance.

The police report for the month of June submitted by Chief of Police Charles R. Spiker was read by Mayor Mellor and includes:

One arrest for speeding; one arrest for stop sign violation; one arrest, driving while drunk; two arrests for drunkeness in public, one city case and the other a state case; one arrest for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, a state case; one hit and run reported; four automobile accidents investigated; four investigations made; six complaints received and investigated.

Parking ticket fines for the month of June amounted to $89.50.

Following the suggestion of Councilman Holmes Haywood it was decided to purchase three park benches to be placed on various streets in the town. Two benches have already been placed in front of the city building which have proved to be very popular.

A two-car length yellow line was ordered painted in front of West End grocery store on Fairview Street since this being a congested area.

The city building used for storage will be cleaned.

Four signs, "Caution, children at play," will be erected at strategic points in town.

August 7 was set for the next meeting of the council.

Please Don't Eat The Daisies

It was summer, and who could blame a frisky, four-month old pup if he felt like frolicking? But when Mrs. Florence L. Frederick of Baltimore discovered one of the plants in her back yard had been dug up, she didn't look upon it as harmless frolic. The 37-year-old nurses aide shot the dog in the front and hind legs with a .38 caliber revolver. Mrs. Frederick was fined $150 for cruelty to animals and discharging a firearm in the city. The pup, being treated above by Dr. William T. Smothers, a veterinarian, is doing fine. But from his look, it's doubtful he'll venture into any more gardens for a while.

Frostburg Hopes To Save Sesquicentennial Items

FROSTBURG — Interest in preserving the items of interest discovered during Frostburg's Sesquicentennial remains high, according to J. Glenn Beall, chairman, and members of the Historical Booklet Committee, who have succeeded in obtaining the gift or loan of many books, papers, pictures, documents, maps and similar objects with the purpose of assembling and protecting them for future reference.

In order to encourage such gifts, the Fidelity Bank has made available to the Sesquicentennial Committee an office in the bank building, East Main Street, it was announced by Ralph Race, the banks' president. Storage space will be provided without cost until a permanent location can be found.

He stated any non-perishable item of historical interest or value could be left at the banking room on the first floor from Monday thru Friday of any week. Very bulky objects, such as furniture cannot be accepted now, but written offers to donate such larger items are welcomed and will be filed pending provision for proper permanent storage.

Mr. Beall joined the Historical Committee in urging everyone who displayed such objects, or who has similar material stored away, to wrap them securely, label as to contents and name and address of the donor, and bring them to the Fidelity Bank for temporary storage. Contributors are requested to write on the back of photographs, or attach firmly to them, identification so far as possible of the time, place, event and persons shown.

A spokesman for a local service club has indicated it soon will spearhead a movement to provide permanent shelter for all such memorabilia where it can be identified, cataloged and made available for research. It is the club's hope that this begining will lead eventually to a small museum of Frostburg history.

Mostly Men Build High Fidelity Kits

By PRESON MCGRAW
United Press International

Manufacturers of high fidelity component kits are continually looking for reasons kit assembling enjoys increasing popularity.

First they credited an almost universal desire to save money. Kits came out that were so expensive they could not possibly appeal to the economy-minded.

Still people bought them. Kit makers then decided that the overriding reason for the popularity of kits must be that people just like to put them together. The search for motivation apparently has not ended there.

Sol S. Sparer, executive vice president of Pacotronics, Inc., which makes the Paco line of kits says a marketing survey analysis has shown him there is another reason for the popularity of kit assembly. He notes that almost all kit assemblers are men.

"Hi-fi and electronic kits are one of the last strongholds of masculinity," according to Sparer. "Today a kit gives a man an opportunity to build something almost from scratch.

"It replaces the gasoline alley of years ago when men demonstrated their superior abilities by pulling apart the family car and putting it together again.

"No other form of 'do-it-yourself' work offers the satisfaction that kit building does. Wives can't make comparisons with any known standards because they don't know what goes on behind the dials.

"Unlike house painting or window cleaning, there is no easy chance for odious comparison."

Sparer says he does not want to give the impression that his company will turn down orders for women to maintain kit building as a male preserve. Men sometimes get more assistance than they want from their wives and daughters when assembling kits.

According to Sparer, Clint Walker of the "cheyenne" television show put together a Paco kit. It turned into such an educational project that Walker could not keep his daughter, Valerie, from helping.

One reason women are not much on kit building is that some mechanical knowledge is necessary, Sparer believes.

Mechanical ability of men notwithstanding, kit manufacturers continue to emphasize the ease with which their kits can be put together.

In a recent test at RCA Institute, according to Sparer, an amateur and n experienced kit builder competed against each other in putting together identical Paco kits.

Both finished in about the same time and there was no difference in performance of the completed units.

Safety Courses Help Prevent Boat Accidents

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

Considering the number of persons who take part in pleasure boating each year—unofficial estimates put the figure at nearly 35.8 million for 1961—the ratio of casualties is extremely low.

Most encouraging is the fact that despite the annual increase in par- about doubled in the past decade —the rate of fatal accidents continues to decline, according to boating authorities.

The reason is that probably in no other sport is there so much emphasis on safety as in pleasure boating.

Today, some 250,000 persons are annually taking some kind of formal instruction in boating, all of it free, according to the Outboard Boating Club of America.

And recent trends have helped increase the number of persons taking boating education courses. These include:

—Television is being used as a medium for boating instruction. Courses in boating have been televised in such major centers as Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles and New Orleans, as well as in many smaller towns and cities.

—School systems are making boating a regular part of their curricula. School systems in New York, Virginia, Washington, California, Tennessee and Florida have introduced boating as an academic subject, much in the fashion of driver training courses. 1958 has resulted in funds for state programs of boating education. Revenue from state boat registration acts passed pursuant to the national act has been used to finance such programs in Kentucky, Alabama, Florida, Illinois, York, such funds are used to pay for a course for youngsters 10-14 who wish to win a boating certificate enabling them to operate on the state's waterways.

Organizations with local units in all parts of the nation are in the business of providing free boating education. For example:

—The Coast Guard Auxiliary offers one-lesson, three-lesson, and eight-lesson courses in general boating.

—A 12-lesson course in Piloting, Seamanship and Small Boat Handling presented by the U.S. Power Squadrons is open to the public, and advanced courses are available for Power Squadron members.

—The Red Cross has a double-barreled boat education program. In step one, instructors are trained in the basics of boating. In step two, they in turn present one-hour dry-land demonstrations on required and recommended equipment and its use, as well as a small craft course covering the use of rowboats, canoes and motor boats.

Despite all of this, however, just more common sense on the part of boat operators could cut in half the annual total of serious pleasure boating mishaps. Ooperator negligence in 1960 for example, accounted for 48.9 per cent of boating fatalities. One out of every 10 fatalities resulted from persons violating a basic safety rule by standing in a small boat.

Killebrew, Allison Hit Grand Slammers As Twins Win, 14-3

Both Circuit Belts Come In First Inning

Cleveland Hurlers Yield 14 Safeties; Harmon Socks Pair

MINNEAPOLIS-St. PAUL (UPI) —Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins became the first major league players in ihstory to hit grand - slam homers in the same inning Wednesday as the Twins scored 11 runs in the first inning to beat Cleveland, 14-3.

Earl Battey had a bases-empty homer to accompany Allison and Killebrew in that riotous inning, and Killebrew later slammed his 24th homer of he year in he third inning.

All told the Twins pounded out 14 hits off three Indians pitchers, but the two that go into the record book were those by Allison and Killebrew.

Cleveland starter Batty Latman, who faced the first six Twins in the opening inning, left the game with nobody out and was charged with the first six runs.

Rich Rollins drove in the first run with a single and Allison then hit the fifth bases-full homer of his career. Earl Battey followed with a bases empty blast.

The Twins collected their five other first frame runs off reliever Jim Perry. Vic Power drove in one with a single and Killebrew accounted for the others with his third career grand-slammer.

Killebrew also hit a solo homer in the third, his 24th of the season. Minnesota picked up two more runs in the seventh.

Dick Stigman went the route for the Twins in his first start of the season. The former Cleveland southpaw struck out 11 and walked only one in gaining his fourth win of the season in six decisions.

Baseball Is An Art

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP) — Mrs. Arthur Ostrander of Huntington, N. Y., visited the National Gallery of Art the afternoon of the All-Star baseball game. She obtained an ear phone to hear the taped description of the paintings and the artists.

She was surprised when one woman tapped her on the shoulder and asked:

Angels Win, 5-0

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Don Lee stymied Detroit with a four-hit shutout pitching performance and Felix Torres blasted three hits Wednesday night to lead the Los Angeles Angels to a 5-0 victory over the floundering Tigers.

Milwaukee Braves Defeat Giants, 6-0

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Right-hander Bob Shaw allowed just two hits Wednesday night in shutting out the San Francisco Giants, 6-0, while helping his Milwaukee teammates Paul Juan Marichal, who had hexed the Braves for more than a year.

It was Shaw's 10th win of the year and the Braves first victory over Marichal since June 22 of last year. Shaw lost his solid bid for a no-hitter when Chuck Hiller earned first base on a ball hit through the pitcher's mound in the third, and doubled in the ninth.

Lee Maye's third home run of the year in the first, good for two runs, was all Shaw needed to defeat Marichal, who had won four straight games from the Braves, three of them this year. However, the Braves tagged Marichal for three more runs in the third and a total of 11 hits before he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Dodgers Whip Reds In 11th

Frank Howard's 2nd Homer Decides, 6-5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Howard's two clutch home runs powered Los Angeles' National League leaders to a 6-5, 11-inning victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night.

But the Reds almost pulled it out in the 11th, punching out two runs on two hits and two walks, before reliever Ron Perranoski could put out the fire. He sealed the decision by getting Marty Keough on an easy forceout with two men on.

Murray Wins French Open

Australian Victor By Single Stroke

PARIS (AP) — Alan Murray, 22-year-old Australian pro, won the French Open Golf Championship Wednesday by one stroke with a 14-under-par 72-hole total of 274.

Murray, making his first European tour, had been tied for third at the halfway point but he made up ground in the final two rounds by shooting 69-68 and passed Bob Charles, the New Zealand southpaw, who had held the lead.

Peter Thomson of Australia and Charles each needed a 3 on the last hole to tie Murray. Thomson's 60-foot putt, trying for a birdie, slipped by the cup by about five feet. Charles' 25-footer stopped an inch short. Both settled for par 5 and tied for second at 275.

Murray, Charles, Thomson and Sebastian Miguel of Spain were tied at the 54-hole mark with 206 over the 6,400-yard par 72 St. Germain course. Murray had picked up three strokes on Charles in the morning round with a 69 to the New Zealander's 72. Thomson pulled even with a 70 and Miguel's 69 moved him into the four-way tie.

Miguel finished with 278. Kel Nagle of Australia, the defending champion, was far down the list with 283 followed by Don Essig of Indianapolis at 284.

Orioles Lose To Athletics

Giggie Halts K.C.'s Losing Streak, 3-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Bob Giggie, starting his first game in the majors, halted a seven - game Kansas City losing streak Wednesday night by pitching the Athletics to a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Giggie, who has been in baseball for 12 years, needed relief help from John Wyatt with one out and two men on base in the ninth inning. Wyatt forced pinch-hitter Charley Lau to hit into a game ending double play, which also halted Baltimore's winning streak at five games.

Giggie scored the Athletics winning run in the seventh inning. The pitcher, who was called up from Portland last week, reached base on an error and moved to second on a sacrifice. Jerry Lumpe singled him home.

Hobie Landrith scored Baltimore's first run on a single by Russ Snyder in the third inning, then singled home Whitey Herzog with the second run in the fourth inning.

Killebrew, Allison Hit Grand Slammers As Twins Win, 14-3

Both Circuit Belts Come In First Inning

Cleveland Hurlers Yield 14 Safeties; Harmon Socks Pair

MINNEAPOLIS-St. PAUL (UPI) —Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins became the first major league players in ihstory to hit grand - slam homers in the same inning Wednesday as the Twins scored 11 runs in the first inning to beat Cleveland, 14-3.

Earl Battey had a bases-empty homer to accompany Allison and Killebrew in that riotous inning, and Killebrew later slammed his 24th homer of he year in he third inning.

All told the Twins pounded out 14 hits off three Indians pitchers, but the two that go into the record book were those by Allison and Killebrew.

Cleveland starter Batty Latman, who faced the first six Twins in the opening inning, left the game with nobody out and was charged with the first six runs.

Rich Rollins drove in the first run with a single and Allison then hit the fifth bases-full homer of his career. Earl Battey followed with a bases empty blast.

Killebrew also hit a solo homer in the third, his 24th of the season. Minnesota picked up two more runs in the seventh.

Dick Stigman went the route for the Twins in his first start of the season. The former Cleveland southpaw struck out 11 and walked only one in gaining his fourth win of the season in six decisions.

Milwaukee Braves Defeat Giants, 6-0

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Right-hander Bob Shaw allowed just two hits Wednesday night in shutting out the San Francisco Giants, 6-0, while helping his Milwaukee teammates Paul Juan Marichal, who had hexed the Braves for more than a year.

It was Shaw's 10th win of the year and the Braves first victory over Marichal since June 22 of last year. Shaw lost his solid bid for a no-hitter when Chuck Hiller earned first base on a ball hit through the pitcher's mound in the third, and doubled in the ninth.

Lee Maye's third home run of the year in the first, good for two runs, was all Shaw needed to defeat Marichal, who had won four straight games from the Braves, three of them this year. However, the Braves tagged Marichal for three more runs in the third and a total of 11 hits before he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Frank Howard's 2nd Homer Decides, 6-5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Howard's two clutch home runs powered Los Angeles' National League leaders to a 6-5, 11-inning victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night.

But the Reds almost pulled it out in the 11th, punching out two runs on two hits and two walks, before reliever Ron Perranoski could put out the fire. He sealed the decision by getting Marty Keough on an easy forceout with two men on.

Murray Wins French Open

Australian Victor By Single Stroke

PARIS (AP) — Alan Murray, 22-year-old Australian pro, won the French Open Golf Championship Wednesday by one stroke with a 14-under-par 72-hole total of 274.

Murray, making his first European tour, had been tied for third at the halfway point but he made up ground in the final two rounds by shooting 69-68 and passed Bob Charles, the New Zealand southpaw, who had held the lead.

Peter Thomson of Australia and Charles each needed a 3 on the last hole to tie Murray. Thomson's 60-foot putt, trying for a birdie, slipped by the cup by about five feet. Charles' 25-footer stopped an inch short. Both settled for par 5 and tied for second at 275.

Murray, Charles, Thomson and Sebastian Miguel of Spain were tied at the 54-hole mark with 206 over the 6,400-yard par 72 St. Germain course. Murray had picked up three strokes on Charles in the morning round with a 69 to the New Zealander's 72. Thomson pulled even with a 70 and Miguel's 69 moved him into the four-way tie.

Miguel finished with 278. Kel Nagle of Australia, the defending champion, was far down the list with 283 followed by Don Essig of Indianapolis at 284.

Orioles Lose To Athletics

Giggie Halts K.C.'s Losing Streak, 3-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Bob Giggie, starting his first game in the majors, halted a seven - game Kansas City losing streak Wednesday night by pitching the Athletics to a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Giggie, who has been in baseball for 12 years, needed relief help from John Wyatt with one out and two men on base in the ninth inning. Wyatt forced pinch-hitter Charley Lau to hit into a game ending double play, which also halted Baltimore's winning streak at five games.

Baltimore took an early 2-1 lead, which was erased by Wayne Causey's solo home run in the fourth inning.

Giggie scored the Athletics winning run in the seventh inning. The pitcher, who was called up from Portland last week, reached base on an error and moved to second on a sacrifice. Jerry Lumpe singled him home.

Hobie Landrith scored Baltimore's first run on a single by Russ Snyder in the third inning, then singled home Whitey Herzog with the second run in the fourth inning.

Heavy Rains Hamper Golfers In Last Tuneup For PGA Meet

44th Tournament Will Start Today; Palmer Is Choice

By OSCAR FALEY

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. (UPI)—Heavy rain hampered the golfers in final tuneup rounds Wednesday on the eve of the 44th annual PGA golf championship, in which Arnold Palmer ranks as a 2 to 1 favorite, but it took a little girl to throw everybody into a dither.

Officials converged hurriedly on two-year-old Martha Rader at the eighth hole when it was believed that she had picked up the drive of Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., and popped it into her mouth.

"That's her own golf ball. She's teething and likes to chew on it."

This topic of conversation ruled the locker room, taking the play away from Palmer's prospective hopes for a "three-quarter slam" and the chances of U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus to halt the Masters and British Open champion once again.

Barber Defends Title

Defending champion Jerry Barber and 12 other former champions were in the 171-man field which will tee off starting at 7 a.m. EDT Thursday and some of the pros were beginning to demonstrate a large slice of pique over the attention being given to Palmer.

"M'ybe you haven't noticed," said former U.S. Open champion Cary Middlecoff, "that in this past year Nicklaus has accomplished a slam nobody else ever has managed to perform. When he won the U.S. Open, at that moment he held the open title, the National Amateur championship, the intercollegiate title and the Western Amateur. That's a pretty fair slam, too."

There also was aggravated speculation in some quarters over the fact that in a "blind" draw the 22-year-old Nicklaus, a 3 to 1 second choice, again had been "drawn" to play with Palmer. They were "drawn" for the first two rounds in the Open, the first two rounds in the Western Open and now for the first two rounds in the PGA.

"That's a rather unusual happenstance, you might say," commented Buck White of Greenwood, Miss. "A very unusual coincidence."

Top Players Teamed

"I don't really care who I play with," he shrugged after shooting a final tuneup one under par 69 in the rain. "Jack's a nice fellow and I like to play with him as well as with anyone else."

Cumberland Comets Play Barton Today At Fort Hill Field

Barton's Braves come to town today to engage the Cumberland Comets in a Twilight Baseball League game at 5:30 p. m., at Fort Hill Field.

The Braves occupy fifth place, only 2½ games back of front-running Midland while the Comets are third, 1½ games off the pace. The Comets hold a 7-1 decision over Barton.

Second place Keyser hosts Gilmore, Lonaconing visits Franklin and Westernport invades Zihlman in other games on the Thursday program. Midland is idle.

Keyser has beaten Gilmore twice, 7-0 and 6-2, Lonaconing has whipped Franklin, 8-3 and 5-3 and Zihlman has whipped Westernport, 9-1 and lost 6-2.

Oklahoma City Fans Good To AA Team

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP) — President Jim Burris of the American Association credits the Oklahoma City 89ers attendance as a shot in the arm for his circuit.

"We're doing much better," says Burris, here for the major league All-Star game, "because Oklahoma went over 100,000 paid admissions on July 1, and has been last in the standing most of the season."

Oklahoma City is affiliated with the Houston Colts of the National League.

"The big problem still is transportation," says Burris. "When we went from eight teams to six we did cut down travel, however. Our longest trip is Louisville to Denver. All trips are by air. Next year we hope to arrange some of the trips by bus."

Dr. George Bennett Started To Develop Helmet In 1940

Gave Credit To Larry MacPhail; Surgeon Dies In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Players and fans scoffed when Larry MacPhail and Dr. George Eli Bennett started to develop a protective helmet for baseball layers in 1940.

"They'll think we're sissies," the players said.

Now the helmets are required equipment in the major leagues and experts think the headgear has prevented serious injury and perhaps death.

Dr. Bennett, who died of a heart attack Tuesday night at the age of 77, talked at length only 10 days ago about the evolution of the helmet. He wasn't interested in personal publicity, but simply wanted the facts straight on how the helmet was developed.

It was in 1940, Dr. Bennett recalled, that MacPhail, then president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, got a jockey's protective cap from Alfred G. Vanderbilt. Bennett took it to Dr. Walter Dandy, who was working on a protective helmet for boxers.

Dr. Bennett said he never got the helmet as low as he wanted it for protection of the temple but it has been satisfactory because of the protection given the side of the head.

"The credit belongs almost entirely to MacPhail," said Dr. Bennett, who also treated the ailments of such stars as Joe DiMaggio, Charles Keller, Tommy Heinrich, Phil Rizzuto, Frank Crosetti, Allie Reynolds, Red Rolfe, Dizzy Dean, Pee Wee Reese, Pete Reiser and Lefty Gomez.

"He liked the idea, but most important, he pushed it. He worked with many persons on it, then made its use compulsory for every player in the Dodger system."

MacPhail quietly had Pee Wee Reese and Joe Medwick, both beaned the year before, wear the helmet in Havana during spring training in 1941.

"No one noticed the players wearing it and shortly thereafter Freddy Fitzsimmons wore it while pitching batting practice," said Dr. Bennett. It was then, he said, that MacPhail predicted:

"Within a year every player in the major leagues will be wearing it."

League To Enforce Transfer Ruling

The Rec Baseball League managers at their meeting agreed to enforce the League rule which states "after the season starts, no switching of teams by players will be permitted."

Thus, if any boy has switched teams this year, he is required to return to his original team to be eligible for play in the League.

Under this rule no releases are permitted after the season play begins. Releasing of players and trades will be allowed only at the beginning of each season and must be approved by all the team managers of the League at a general meeting prior to start of the League.

Bill Sharman Gets Coaching Job On Coast

Named Cage Mentor At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bill Sharman, former professional star and coach of the Cleveland Pipers last season, was appointed head basketball coach Wednesday at Los Angeles State College.

Sharman, 36, former star of the Boston Celtics, succeeds colorful Sax Elliot in the surprise move. It had been indicated Sharman did not expect to go back with the Pipers, but the appointment at Los Angeles State was not anticipated.

Elliot, who has been coach at Los Angeles State since 1949, will continue as head of the college's Department of Health and Safety Education.

Sharman's decision to accept the coaching post at the rapidly growing Los Angeles State school was based at least in part on his desire to remain in the Southern California area. Sharman was an individual standout at the University of Southern California before joining the Celtics in 1951.

On Monday, Sharman said he had talked the situation over with Cleveland owner-president George Steinbrenner and reluctantly concluded he would probably "stay in California."

"I'd really love to go back and coach the Cleveland squad," said Sharman, "including Jerry Lucas, because I feel I'm better qualified for pro coaching than on any other level. But there are two or three things keeping me out here—my family doesn't want to move East, a business opportunity and something else that I can't talk about at this time."

The "something else" obviously was the Los Angeles State offer—terms of which weren't disclosed. Although the high scoring Los Angeles squad had a losing season in 1961-62, Sharman can draw on a huge reservoir of talent in the greater Los Angeles area. Los Angeles State compares in enrollment with both USC and UCLA.

Robert G. Miller Recalled By Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets returned to having two Bob Millers on their pitching staff Wednesday when they recalled lefthander Robert G. Miller from Syracuse of the International League.

Already on the mets' staff is Robert L. Miller, a righthander. Robert G. was obtained from Cincinnati earlier this season as part of the deal for infielder Don Zimmer, and after a short time was optioned to Syracuse.

At first Robert G. refused to report to Syracuse. However, he changed his mind and appeared in 21 games for the Chiefs, all in relief, with four wins and one loss and a 3.46 earned run average.

Yankees Rack Up 16 Hits, Trounce Boston Sox, 12-4

Cop Sixth Straight, Berra Has 4 Blows, Mantle Belts 18th

BOSTON (UPI) —The big batteries of the New York Yankees swung into action early and often Wednesday when the American League leaders won their sixth consecutive game, defeating the Boston Red Sox, 12-4.

Rookie Jim Bouton gave up 11 scattered hits, but his teammates pounded out 16 hits off four Boston pitchers. The win was the third of the season for Bouton in five starts.

Mickey Mantle, who only played the first six innings, was the most productive of all the Yankee hitters, batting in four runs on two hits including his 18th homer of the season. The homer came in the fourth inning when New York clubbed reliefer Galen Cisco for four runs on three homers.

Veteran catcher Yogi Berra made four of the Yankee hits, one of which was his eighth homer of the season, and drove in three runs.

The Yankees chased Red Sox starter Bill Monbouquette in the first inning, but not before they had hit Boston's lone all - star choice for three runs on five hits.

Pete Runnels, who lost his American League batting leadership to Manny Jimenez of the Athletics last night, hit his eighth homer of the year in the second inning. He also had a single in four official trips lifting his average to .341.

Golfers Should Act In Lightning Storms

This is the time of year when many vacationists take to golf courses, and it might be a good time to warn unexperienced club swingers about the menace of lightning, especially on courses in mountain retreats.

Don't seek shelter under an isolated tree. A dense woods or grove is better. Seek out the shorter trees. The higher objects form a con of protection, the theory being that an object will shield an area within a radius of one or two times the height of the object.

Seek shelter in a cave, or a depression in the ground. A ravine, valley or ditch, or the foot of an overhanging cliff offer protection.

If caught on open ground it is dangerous to run or stand erect. Lie flat on the ground. Some people believe in removing their spiked shoes.

Named Cage Mentor At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bill Sharman, former professional star and coach of the Cleveland Pipers last season, was appointed head basketball coach Wednesday at Los Angeles State College.

Sharman, 36, former star of the Boston Celtics, succeeds colorful Sax Elliot in the surprise move. It had been indicated Sharman did not expect to go back with the Pipers, but the appointment at Los Angeles State was not anticipated.

Elliot, who has been coach at Los Angeles State since 1949, will continue as head of the college's Department of Health and Safety Education.

Sharman's decision to accept the coaching post at the rapidly growing Los Angeles State school was based at least in part on his desire to remain in the Southern California area. Sharman was an individual standout at the University of Southern California before joining the Celtics in 1951.

On Monday, Sharman said he had talked the situation over with Cleveland owner-president George Steinbrenner and reluctantly concluded he would probably "stay in California."

"I'd really love to go back and coach the Cleveland squad," said Sharman, "including Jerry Lucas, because I feel I'm better qualified for pro coaching than on any other level. But there are two or three things keeping me out here—my family doesn't want to move East, a business opportunity and something else that I can't talk about at this time."

The "something else" obviously was the Los Angeles State offer—terms of which weren't disclosed. Although the high scoring Los Angeles squad had a losing season in 1961-62, Sharman can draw on a huge reservoir of talent in the greater Los Angeles area. Los Angeles State compares in enrollment with both USC and UCLA.

Robert G. Miller Recalled By Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets returned to having two Bob Millers on their pitching staff Wednesday when they recalled lefthander Robert G. Miller from Syracuse of the International League.

Already on the mets' staff is Robert L. Miller, a righthander. Robert G. was obtained from Cincinnati earlier this season as part of the deal for infielder Don Zimmer, and after a short time was optioned to Syracuse.

At first Robert G. refused to report to Syracuse. However, he changed his mind and appeared in 21 games for the Chiefs, all in relief, with four wins and one loss and a 3.46 earned run average.

Pirates Rained Out

Yankees Rack Up 16 Hits, Trounce Boston Sox, 12-4

Cop Sixth Straight, Berra Has 4 Blows, Mantle Belts 18th

BOSTON (UPI) —The big batteries of the New York Yankees swung into action early and often Wednesday when the American League leaders won their sixth consecutive game, defeating the Boston Red Sox, 12-4.

Rookie Jim Bouton gave up 11 scattered hits, but his teammates pounded out 16 hits off four Boston pitchers. The win was the third of the season for Bouton in five starts.

Mickey Mantle, who only played the first six innings, was the most productive of all the Yankee hitters, batting in four runs on two hits including his 18th homer of the season. The homer came in the fourth inning when New York clubbed reliefer Galen Cisco for four runs on three homers.

Veteran catcher Yogi Berra made four of the Yankee hits, one of which was his eighth homer of the season, and drove in three runs.

The Yankees chased Red Sox starter Bill Monbouquette in the first inning, but not before they had hit Boston's lone all - star choice for three runs on five hits.

Pete Runnels, who lost his American League batting leadership to Manny Jimenez of the Athletics last night, hit his eighth homer of the year in the second inning. He also had a single in four official trips lifting his average to .341.

Golfers Should Act In Lightning Storms

This is the time of year when many vacationists take to golf courses, and it might be a good time to warn unexperienced club swingers about the menace of lightning, especially on courses in mountain retreats.

Here are some do's and dont's concerning lightning.

Don't seek shelter under an isolated tree. A dense woods or grove is better. Seek out the shorter trees. The higher objects form a con of protection, the theory being that an object will shield an area within a radius of one or two times the height of the object.

Stay clear of wire fences and overhead wires.

Seek shelter in a cave, or a depression in the ground. A ravine, valley or ditch, or the foot of an overhanging cliff offer protection.

If caught on open ground it is dangerous to run or stand erect. Lie flat on the ground. Some people believe in removing their spiked shoes.

Stock Market Sustains Fourth Straight Loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered its fourth consecutive loss Wednesday as prices dipped sharply in the first hour and slowly extended their losses later in the day as trading tapered off.

Brokers felt that more disheartening June business statistics — the latest a 3½ per cent drop in durable goods sales — were responsible for the additional decline.

Trading rose to 3,620,000 shares from 3,500,000 on Tuesday. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index lost 0.58 and in the Dow-Jones averages industrials shed 6.61, rails 1.55 and utilities 0.95.

With 1,237 issues traded, the market was 40 issues narrower than the prior session. Declines outnumbered advances by 785 to 267 and only three issues touched 1962 highs while 21 struck new lows.

Polaroid was by far the market's most active issue, plunging 13⅛ points to 97 on 182,400 shares on news it earned only 18 cents a share in the second quarter. General Motors was off ⅜ and Ford up ⅛ in a narrow auto sector. U. S. Steel was active and down 1⅛ to feature a generally lower steel group. Leading oils were also down although they narrowed their losses in most instances toward the close. Losses of 1¾ in Kodak, and 1⅛ in Union Carbide told the story for chemicals.

Stock Market Sustains Fourth Straight Loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered its fourth consecutive loss Wednesday as prices dipped sharply in the first hour and slowly extended their losses later in the day as trading tapered off.

Brokers felt that more disheartening June business statistics — the latest a 3½ per cent drop in durable goods sales — were responsible for the additional decline.

Trading rose to 3,620,000 shares from 3,500,000 on Tuesday. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index lost 0.58 and in the Dow-Jones averages industrials shed 6.61, rails 1.55 and utilities 0.95.

With 1,237 issues traded, the market was 40 issues narrower than the prior session. Declines outnumbered advances by 785 to 267 and only three issues touched 1962 highs while 21 struck new lows.

Polaroid was by far the market's most active issue, plunging 13⅛ points to 97 on 182,400 shares on news it earned only 18 cents a share in the second quarter. General Motors was off ⅜ and Ford up ⅛ in a narrow auto sector. U. S. Steel was active and down 1⅛ to feature a generally lower steel group. Leading oils were also down although they narrowed their losses in most instances toward the close. Losses of 1¾ in Kodak, and 1⅛ in Union Carbide told the story for chemicals.

Project Halted At Sugar Grove

McNamara Order Stops Work On Radio Telescope

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered a halt Wednesday in construction of what would have been the world's biggest movable radio telescope.

He said scientific advances have overtaken it and its cost has risen 150 per cent.

The 600-foot dish-like antenna has been under construction by the Navy at Sugar Grove, W.Va., since 1958.

So far, $95.5 million has been obligated for the project, of which $41.7 has been spent. In all, Congress has voted $126.2 million for the research station since 1957.

Acted After Study

A Pentagon announcement said McNamara acted after an intensive study of the potential usefulness of the telescope and a "determination that the need originally established in 1954 for classified research in ionospheric physics, space communications, navigation and radio astronomy has been substantially reduced by major advances in science and technology not foreseen at that time."

A Navy spokesman said, in short, that "better ways have been found" to do the work originally planned for the mighty telescope. He said security considerations prevented him from going into detail.

In addition to the scientific question, the Defense Department said the estimated over-all project cost has increased from about $80 million to more than $200 million during the last 4½ years.

It said design and construction phases of this project have proven to be far more complex than originally estimated. The Navy spokesman said a slowup on the work had come in perfecting structural design of the telescope, and that only about 70 per cent of this design work has been completed so far.

"Because of (the) decrease in potential usefulness and the increase in cost," the Pentagon said, "the secretary of defense instructed the secretary of the Navy to issue a stop order on the construction."

$1 Million A Month

The project has been carried on recently at the rate of about $1 million a month.

The Navy spokesman said the work done so far included building of access roads into the remote area, grading of the site which involved moving about one and a half million cubic yards of earth, and the completion of most of the turntable for the telescope which would have listened deep into space.

Other work which had moved along was completion of eleven 50-by-50 foot aluminum panels which would have been used as reflectors inside the dish.

The structural shell of a 50,000 square foot, two-story underground laboratory operations building had been completed, and a power plant using natural gas as fuel was due to be finished in October.

Some Work Completed

Further, a 25-mile, six inch gas supply line had been installed and several major control systems for instrumentation were in various stages of completion.

The Defense Department said McNamara is consulting with other agencies, including the Commerce Department, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the National Science Foundation "to determine the extent to which the work already accomplished can be modified, adapted, or utilized to contribute to the programs of those agencies."

West Virginia's Tourist Plans To Be Affected

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The halt ordered Wednesday in construction of the Navy's big radio telscope at Sugar Grove, W. Va. had far-reaching effects on the West Virginia's tourist development and 1963 centennial plans.

The 600-foot, dish-like antenna had been under construction by the Navy since 1958, and the so-called big ear had been formally adopted as the emblem for West Virginia's centennial observance next year.

The state received a $1,477,000 grant from the Area Redevelopment Administration—the largest such allocation to it since ARA was set up last year—for a tourist development near the Pendleton County site in West Virginia's South Branch Valley about 25 miles west of Harrisonsburg, Va.

The telescope has been expected to attract thousands of tourists to West Virginia. The total cost of a tourist project had been estimated at $2 million.

Plans called for combination of the ARA grant with $550,000 from other state and federal funds to begin such construction. The Navy Department had agreed to furnish the interior of the tourist center with exhibits and to pipe sounds picked up by the telescope from outer space to the facility.

The State Natural Resources Department planned to operate the ultramodern facility under the state parks and forest system. The structure already has been designed, and had been awaiting construction.

Appraisers Say They Hiked Prices On Order

Hearing Continued In Highway Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former West Virginia highway official testified Wednesday that steep boosts were made in original appraisals of land needed for rights-of-way because he wanted to be fair to the property owners.

"I made mistakes but I had no axe to grind," Lawrence E. Thompson, former chief appraiser for the State Road Commission, told the House Highway Investigating Committee.

Thompson's appearance in the witness chair came after three appraisers had testified they raised evaluations in favor of property owners on instructions from Thompson.

The committee has heard testimony that revised estimates for land taken on South Oakwood Avenue in Beckley, W. Va., were in many cases far in excess of appraisals made in retrospect.

Thompson testified he worked under pressure with a limited staff.

"I had more work than I could do," he said. "In Beckley, I was doing the best that I could do. I made mistakes, but everything I did was to the best of my ability."

He said he knew only three property owners on the street where 34 parcels of land were taken to make the street a four-lane thoroughfare.

"I used the best judgment I had," he said. "My object was to be fair to all the people concerned and equalize the values. In some cases I raised the prices. I was not a negotiator, I was an appraiser."

Appraisers who worked under Thompson testified Tuesday that Thompson told them to include in their estimates the cost of moving some buildings, none of which was moved, and to treat all the land as commercial and not as part residential.

Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., has called the Beckley appraisals grossly inflated.

Thompson said he spent 35 years in the real estate business at Oak Hill, W. Va., before he took the road commission job in 1957. He said he had no help of any kind when he took the job. Later, he said, he was given limited help.

It was impossible, he said, for him to review every appraisal.

Architect Suggests Changes

More than 50 Cumberland businessmen and property owners met last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel to hear Dr. Milton Osborne, head of the Department of Architecture at Penn State University, discuss some of his ideas on how to improve the appearance of downtown stores.

Dr. Osborne showed the group slides of some of his accomplishments in Gettysburg and Hollidaysburg, Pa. Included were pictures which showed the property before and after the changes were made.

The architect stressed that these changes may not be costly. As a matter of fact they average about $250 per store, he said.

An effort will be undertaken to have this done on a block basis rather than by individual stores.

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that success of this effort will be determined by the number of property owners and store managers who avail themselves of the opportunity.

Architect Discusses "Facelift"

County Obtains $69,356 From Tax On Liquor

$2,228 Increase Over Past Year

Allegany County has received $69,356 for the fiscal year which ended June 30 from State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein from the distribution of distilled spirits tax revenue.

That total, representing 50 cents tax on each of 138,712 gallons delivered to retailers in Allegany County during the fiscal year.

The gain of $2,228.50 above the previous fiscal year was 3.32 per cent more than the $67,127.50 received by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, county auditor, in the previous fiscal year.

The gain of $2,228.50 above the previous fiscal year was 3.32 per cent more than the $67,127.50 received by Mrs. Johanna N. Sills, county auditor, in the previous fiscal year.

Allegany County's total was reached with the mailing this week of a check for $16,845 for the April-June quarter. The increase for the quarter was $462 or 2.82 per cent more than the corresponding quarter a year ago.

State-wide during the fiscal year some $2,404,548.50 was distributed to Baltimore City and the 23 Maryland counties. The increase over the previous 12 months was $124,137 or 5.44 per cent.

During this first full year of legal sale of distilled spirits in Garrett County a total of $5,676 in excise tax, was sent to the western-most county from the comptroller's office.

That was $4,832 or 572.51 per cent more than in the previous fiscal year when the county-operated liquor stores in Grantsville and Oakland were just stocking up for the beginning of business early last July.

Allegany County was topped by only Baltimore city and the four large metropolitan counties in income from this tax. Baltimore city received $1,068,934 in the fiscal year, Baltimore County got $311,417, Prince George's County had $224,247.50, Anne Arundel County obtained $130,219 and Montgomery County collected $140,729.50.

Grantsville Man, Hurt In Accident, Reported Improving

Lloyd Yoder, 49, of Grantsville, last night was reported improving in Meyersdale (Pa.) Community Hospital, where he was admitted Tuesday evening with injuries sustained in a highway accident on U. S. Route 40 between Grantsville and Meadow Mountain.

Police said an auto operated by Bernard E. McKenzie, 28, of 104 Wills Creek Avenue, struck the rear of a hay baler and wagon being pulled by a tractor driven by Yoder.

The accident occurred on a slope near Robison's Restaurant and Service Station east of Grantsville. Yoder sustained multiple fractures of his chest, according to authorities, who said Raymond Yoder, 16, also riding on the tractor, was not hurt in the accident.

Dr. Myron L. Simpson, a native of Cumberland with some 25 years experience in teaching and administration, has been appointed to a full-time position as the first full professor at Allegany Community College.

The appointment was announced by Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, who noted that Dr. Simpson had been a part-time member of the faculty during the college's first year of operation. He taught the course in general zoology. He will teach zoology, human anatomy and physiology.

A 1928 graduate of Allegany High School, Dr. Simpson was graduated the following year from Massanutten Military Academy, Woodstock, Va. Ellerslie Youth Is Injured In Tractor Mishap

John Bohn, 15, To Undergo Surgery

A 15-year-old Ellerslie youth, who sustained a fractured right leg, cuts and bruises Friday when he was pinned under the wreckage of a farm tractor in an accident at Springfield, W. Va. is scheduled to undergo surgery today at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Last night John Bohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Bohn, was reported to have been "resting comfortably," said attaches.

The tractor had been driven to a gas station in that community and while young Landis was turning off West Virginia Route 28 into the driveway of Hubert Deskins, a Pennsylvania car was reported to have struck the farm vehicle and knocked it over a 15-foot embankment.

Landis was also pinned under the wreckage but was able to free himself, sustaining minor injuries.

Bohn was transferred Sunday night to the local hospital. He is a student at Mt. Savage High School.

Over 200 persons had chest X-rays taken yesterday at the mobile unit on North Centre Street near Baltimore Street before a part in the mechanism broke down and forced the unit to stop operation.

Operators of the unit called Baltimore for the necessary part to repair the trouble and they were expected to work through the night to get the unit in operation this morning.

Today, the unit will be on North Centre Street near the Cumberland Brewery from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Residents of the city also will be able to obtain X-rays next week when the unit plans another three-day visit.

On Monday, the unit will be at the Virginia Avenue School from noon to 6 p. m. and the next day it will be at the Tri-State Discount Center on Gay Street from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m. On Wednesday it will be at the A & P lot on Wineow Street.

Mortgage Loans Being Sold By VA

The Veterans Administration has received a number of inquiries from private investors concerning $220 million in mortgage loans VA has offered for sale during the month of July, according to F. E. Quinn, manager of the Baltimore Regional office.

Mr. Quinn said the Baltimore office is participating in the sale and has offered $10.8 million in mortgages, as part of the nation-wide offering.

All mortgages will be sold under a special VA guaranty agreement which will obligate VA to re-purchase the mortgage, if a serious default develops after the sale to an investor.

The loans being sold are purchase money mortgages which were taken by VA to secure the payment of the balance due from the purchasers of houses sold by VA. These properties were acquired by VA when private lenders terminated GI loans which they held and which the VA had guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act.

Interest rates on the loans to be sold vary, ranging from 5 to 5; per cent. The loans are in blocks grouped to geographical location and interest rate in amounts from about $100,000 to $1,000,000.

Mr. Quinn said any investor may obtain a list of the loans, forms for submitting bids and other information from the Baltimore office, Fayette and St. Paul Streets.

Subdivision Master Plan Study Pushed

Rules Needed Soon As Possible

A few recommendations were aired last night at the Court House when an Allegany County citizens advisory group met in reference to a master plan for the county concerning subdivision regulations.

Those present agreed the county is being hurt by not having subdivision regulations which should be put into effect as soon as possible.

A building code which would set up minimum requirements controlling the quality of new construction in the county also was the consensus of the group.

In reference to a geologist report being required on mountain sites or steep grades, the group felt this shouldn't be required in all cases of construction but should be required if there is a question about the proposed site.

A uniform street naming system was also suggested by those who attended last night's meeting which was in charge of Carl O. Belt, a member of the County Planning and Zoning Commission.

A letter was received from the Builders Association with a number of suggestions they feel should be included in the overall subdivision regulations.

The builders have asked the Planning and Zoning Commission for a little more time for consideration of the proposed subdivision regulations.

The letter with its suggestions will be presented during a regular meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission July 26. Suggestions made by the advisory group at last night's meeting as well as a meeting held on June 20 will also be presented to the commission.

Before the regulations are adopted interested individuals will be given an opportunity to study them.

Two public hearings will also be required before the adoption of the proposed regulations, one by the Planning and Zoning Commission and the other by the County Board of Commissioners.

Present at the meeting last night besides Mr. Belt were C. Lee Renaud, county planning director; Thomas W. Burton, real estate developer; William H. Harman, treasurer of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association; Clyde Slider and Russell Robeson, home builders; John W. Yoder, plumbing contractor; Harry T. Skelly, county roads supervisor; Albert Paye, acting county engineer who reviews plats; and J. Byron Dowling, executive secretary of the builders association.

Bus Driver Did Not Hear Warning Bells

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — The driver of a school bus struck by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train testified Wednesday he did not hear warning bells or a whistle or see signal lights prior to the collision.

The driver, LeRoy Campbell, said he had had an unimpeded view of the track when the accident happened at the Mountain Lake crossing in Garrett County, Sept. 10, 1959. There were 26 children aboard the bus.

Campbell, testifying at the trial of two damage suits arising from the accident, said the bus was stalled on the track before he saw the train.

He said he then tried to move the vehicle by putting it in gear and pushing the starter button.

This failed, Campbell testified, so he ordered the children off the bus after having first opened the door for them.

The damage suits have been filed on behalf of Olen Roy Hinkle Jr., 15, and Frances Dixon, 17, both of Deer Park, Garrett County.

Hinkle is claiming $140,000 and Miss Dixon, $100,000. They named the railroad and Campbell in the civil suits.

Campbell testified he might have become excited when he saw the train bearing down on the bus.

He told the court that he had not instructed the children during the school year on how to use the emergency door. Some of the children aboard the bus, however, had learned the procedure from him during previous years, he said.

Miss Dixon testified that she heard bells prior to the wreck, but did not see the train and remembered little after the collision.

Chief Judge James Boylan is hearing the case with a jury in Carroll County Circuit Court. The suits were filed in Garrett County then transferred here last April.

Project Halted At Sugar Grove

McNamara Order Stops Work On Radio Telescope

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered a halt Wednesday in construction of what would have been the world's biggest movable radio telescope.

He said scientific advances have overtaken it and its cost has risen 150 per cent.

The 600-foot dish-like antenna has been under construction by the Navy at Sugar Grove, W.Va., since 1958.

So far, $95.5 million has been obligated for the project, of which $41.7 has been spent. In all, Congress has voted $126.2 million for the research station since 1957.

Acted After Study

A Pentagon announcement said McNamara acted after an intensive study of the potential usefulness of the telescope and a "determination that the need originally established in 1954 for classified research in ionospheric physics, space communications, navigation and radio astronomy has been substantially reduced by major advances in science and technology not foreseen at that time."

A Navy spokesman said, in short, that "better ways have been found" to do the work originally planned for the mighty telescope. He said security considerations prevented him from going into detail.

In addition to the scientific question, the Defense Department said the estimated over-all project cost has increased from about $80 million to more than $200 million during the last 4½ years.

It said design and construction phases of this project have proven to be far more complex than originally estimated. The Navy spokesman said a slowup on the work had come in perfecting structural design of the telescope, and that only about 70 per cent of this design work has been completed so far.

"Because of (the) decrease in potential usefulness and the increase in cost," the Pentagon said, "the secretary of defense instructed the secretary of the Navy to issue a stop order on the construction."

$1 Million A Month

The project has been carried on recently at the rate of about $1 million a month.

The Navy spokesman said the work done so far included building of access roads into the remote area, grading of the site which involved moving about one and a half million cubic yards of earth, and the completion of most of the turntable for the telescope which would have listened deep into space.

Other work which had moved along was completion of eleven 50-by-50 foot aluminum panels which would have been used as reflectors inside the dish.

The structural shell of a 50,000 square foot, two-story underground laboratory operations building had been completed, and a power plant using natural gas as fuel was due to be finished in October.

Some Work Completed

Further, a 25-mile, six inch gas supply line had been installed and several major control systems for instrumentation were in various stages of completion.

The Defense Department said McNamara is consulting with other agencies, including the Commerce Department, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the National Science Foundation "to determine the extent to which the work already accomplished can be modified, adapted, or utilized to contribute to the programs of those agencies."

West Virginia's Tourist Plans To Be Affected

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The halt ordered Wednesday in construction of the Navy's big radio telscope at Sugar Grove, W. Va. had far-reaching effects on the West Virginia's tourist development and 1963 centennial plans.

The 600-foot, dish-like antenna had been under construction by the Navy since 1958, and the so-called big ear had been formally adopted as the emblem for West Virginia's centennial observance next year.

The state received a $1,477,000 grant from the Area Redevelopment Administration—the largest such allocation to it since ARA was set up last year—for a tourist development near the Pendleton County site in West Virginia's South Branch Valley about 25 miles west of Harrisonsburg, Va.

The telescope has been expected to attract thousands of tourists to West Virginia. The total cost of a tourist project had been estimated at $2 million.

Plans called for combination of the ARA grant with $550,000 from other state and federal funds to begin such construction. The Navy Department had agreed to furnish the interior of the tourist center with exhibits and to pipe sounds picked up by the telescope from outer space to the facility.

The State Natural Resources Department planned to operate the ultramodern facility under the state parks and forest system. The structure already has been designed, and had been awaiting construction.

Appraisers Say They Hiked Prices On Order

Hearing Continued In Highway Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former West Virginia highway official testified Wednesday that steep boosts were made in original appraisals of land needed for rights-of-way because he wanted to be fair to the property owners.

"I made mistakes but I had no axe to grind," Lawrence E. Thompson, former chief appraiser for the State Road Commission, told the House Highway Investigating Committee.

Thompson's appearance in the witness chair came after three appraisers had testified they raised evaluations in favor of property owners on instructions from Thompson.

The committee has heard testimony that revised estimates for land taken on South Oakwood Avenue in Beckley, W. Va., were in many cases far in excess of appraisals made in retrospect.

Thompson testified he worked under pressure with a limited staff.

"I had more work than I could do," he said. "In Beckley, I was doing the best that I could do. I made mistakes, but everything I did was to the best of my ability."

He said he knew only three property owners on the street where 34 parcels of land were taken to make the street a four-lane thoroughfare.

"I used the best judgment I had," he said. "My object was to be fair to all the people concerned and equalize the values. In some cases I raised the prices. I was not a negotiator, I was an appraiser."

Appraisers who worked under Thompson testified Tuesday that Thompson told them to include in their estimates the cost of moving some buildings, none of which was moved, and to treat all the land as commercial and not as part residential.

Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., has called the Beckley appraisals grossly inflated.

Thompson said he spent 35 years in the real estate business at Oak Hill, W. Va., before he took the road commission job in 1957. He said he had no help of any kind when he took the job. Later, he said, he was given limited help.

It was impossible, he said, for him to review every appraisal.

During this first full year of legal sale of distilled spirits in Garrett County a total of $5,676 in excise tax, was sent to the western-most county from the comptroller's office.

That was $4,832 or 572.51 per cent more than in the previous fiscal year when the county-operated liquor stores in Grantsville and Oakland were just stocking up for the beginning of business early last July.

Allegany County was topped by only Baltimore city and the four large metropolitan counties in income from this tax. Baltimore city received $1,068,934 in the fiscal year, Baltimore County got $311,417, Prince George's County had $224,247.50, Anne Arundel County obtained $180,219 and Montgomery County collected $140,729.50.

Cumberland Native Joins College Faculty Here

Dr. Myron L. Simpson, a native of Cumberland with some 25 years experience in teaching and administration, has been appointed to a full-time position as the first full professor at Allegany Community College.

The appointment was announced by Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, who noted that Dr. Simpson had been a part-time member of the faculty during the college's first year of operation. He taught the course in general zoology. He will teach zoology, human anatomy and physiology.

A 1928 graduate of Allegany High School, Dr. Simpson was graduated the following year from Massanutten Military Academy, Woodstock, Va. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1933 from American University in Washington and his Doctor of Science degree from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore in 1944. He also took graduate work in physiology at the University of Cincinnati and was a regular medical student at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, where he studied the basic medical sciences.

He began his teaching career at Massanutten Military Academy after college graduation. During his stay at Massanutten he was studying for his doctorate at Hopkins and also served as assistant in parasitology at Hopkins.

After receiving his Sc. D degree from Johns Hopkins, Dr. Simpson became a member of the faculty of Gettysburg (Pa.) College, first as instructor and then as assistant professor of biology. He left Gettysburg to become professor of biology and chairman of the Department of Biology at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., where he remained nine years.

Ellerslie Youth Is Injured In Tractor Mishap

John Bohn, 15, To Undergo Surgery

A 15-year-old Ellerslie youth, who sustained a fractured right leg, cuts and bruises Friday when he was pinned under the wreckage of a farm tractor in an accident at Springfield, W. Va. is scheduled to undergo surgery today at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Last night John Bohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Bohn, was reported to have been "resting comfortably," said attaches.

Young Bohn was riding on a farm tractor being operated by a cousin, Gregory Landis, who lives in Springfield.

The tractor had been driven to a gas station in that community and while young Landis was turning off West Virginia Route 28 into the driveway of Hubert Deskins, a Pennsylvania car was reported to have struck the farm vehicle and knocked it over a 15-foot embankment.

The Bohn youth was pinned under the wreckage and was freed 45 minutes later when a rigger from Romney moved the tractor.

Landis was also pinned under the wreckage but was able to free himself, sustaining minor injuries.

Both youths were taken to the Hampshire Memorial Hospital in Romney by ambulance for treatment.

Mortgage Loans Being Sold By VA

The Veterans Administration has received a number of inquiries from private investors concerning $220 million in mortgage loans VA has offered for sale during the month of July, according to F. E. Quinn, manager of the Baltimore Regional office.

Mr. Quinn said the Baltimore office is participating in the sale and has offered $10.8 million in mortgages, as part of the nation-wide offering.

All mortgages will be sold under a special VA guaranty agreement which will obligate VA to re-purchase the mortgage, if a serious default develops after the sale to an investor.

The loans being sold are purchase money mortgages which were taken by VA to secure the payment of the balance due from the purchasers of houses sold by VA. These properties were acquired by VA when private lenders terminated GI loans which they held and which the VA had guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act.

Interest rates on the loans to be sold vary, ranging from 5 to 5; per cent. The loans are in blocks grouped to geographical location and interest rate in amounts from about $100,000 to $1,000,000.

Mr. Quinn said any investor may obtain a list of the loans, forms for submitting bids and other information from the Baltimore office, Fayette and St. Paul Streets.

Architect Suggests Changes

More than 50 Cumberland businessmen and property owners met last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel to hear Dr. Milton Osborne, head of the Department of Architecture at Penn State University, discuss some of his ideas on how to improve the appearance of downtown stores.

Dr. Osborne showed the group slides of some of his accomplishments in Gettysburg and Hollidaysburg, Pa. Included were pictures which showed the property before and after the changes were made.

The architect stressed that these changes may not be costly. As a matter of fact they average about $250 per store, he said.

An effort will be undertaken to have this done on a block basis rather than by individual stores.

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that success of this effort will be determined by the number of property owners and store managers who avail themselves of the opportunity.

Grantsville Man, Hurt In Accident, Reported Improving

Lloyd Yoder, 49, of Grantsville, last night was reported improving in Meyersdale (Pa.) Community Hospital, where he was admitted Tuesday evening with injuries sustained in a highway accident on U. S. Route 40 between Grantsville and Meadow Mountain.

Police said an auto operated by Bernard E. McKenzie, 28, of 104 Wills Creek Avenue, struck the rear of a hay baler and wagon being pulled by a tractor driven by Yoder.

The accident occurred on a slope near Robison's Restaurant and Service Station east of Grantsville. Yoder sustained multiple fractures of his chest, according to authorities, who said Raymond Yoder, 16, also riding on the tractor, was not hurt in the accident.
